Clint maintains a passion for local politics

By DAVID LELAND

SLIGHTLY MORE than a year after completing a lively two-year term as Carmel mayor, Clint Eastwood retains his penchant for attacking issues he believes are crucial to the city.

In fact, if anything, Eastwood is more vocal as a part-time player in local politics than when the world kept a close vigil on his mayoral duties.

While Eastwood says he receives a Carmel City Council agenda packet each month, he has only "stuck my head in meetings a couple of times."

'I tried to represent the majority — I thought I was most of the time. It was always the vocal minority making most of the racket.'

But ask him about burning issues such as water rights, building design or the activities of the Carmel Residents Association and he makes his beliefs clear.

To be sure, Eastwood has not lost the fervor that catapulted him into local politics three years ago, after facing a rare personal defeat before the Carmel Planning Commission.

The former mayor, who has spent the majority of his time in Los Angeles during the past year, says he is pleasantly surprised at the melding of the CRA and Carmel Business Association.

The two entities, along with several other organizations offered a seminar this week on preserving Carmel's architectural and historical heritage.

"I think it's a nice, modest gesture," he says of the CRA's involvement with the business community. "I think it's noble of them to broaden their interests."

During his term as mayor, Eastwood was often at odds with the CRA, who charged that the mayor sacrificed residential quality for business profits.

Eastwood still enjoys taking a poke at the 487-member CRA, which he believes represents only a fraction of Carmel's population.

"I wish the residents' group spoke for a wider spectrum of the community," he says, adding that Carmel is currently lacking such an entity. "There is no major, broad community organization that represents several thousand people."

Eastwood claims that the CRA is "polarized" in its beliefs and is usually not open to new suggestions.

Did he represent most of Carmel's 5,000-plus voters when he served as mayor?

"I tried to represent the majority — I thought I was most of the time," he says, alluding to the 72-percent majority that voted him into office in April of 1986. "It was always the vocal minority making most of the racket."

As a firm believer in private property rights, Eastwood walks somewhat of a tightrope when it comes to the subject of historical preservation.

"I happen to prefer older houses and an older look myself," he explains. "I happen to like that feel and would hate to see modernization occur."

On the other hand, however, he views a person's home as his castle.

"Carmel people have always said they are a fiercely independent people and they should remain that way," says Eastwood, adding builders should rely on their own "conscience" to guide them in creating design plans that will not detract from Carmel's character.

FOR EASTWOOD, the two years he served as mayor served as somewhat of a hiatus from his busy filmmaking career. During his term he completed Heartbreak Ridge and began filming Bird.

The year since his departure from public office has seen Eastwood complete filming of The Dead Pool, a fourth Dirty Harry sequel; Pink Cadillac, an action-adventure movie slated for release May 26; and receive an Academy Award for the soundtrack for Bird, the story of legendary jazz saxophonist Charlie Parker.

This summer he will travel to Africa to star and direct White Hunter, Black Heart, the story of the pre-production of John Huston's classic film, African Queen.

Eastwood, who is known for brandishing heavy artillery in catching crooks, calls White Hunter, Black Heart an "ecology statement."

"It's not exactly a pro-hunting movie," says Eastwood of the movie that criticizes the killing of the African elephant and centers on Huston's obsession for hunting.

That's not to say the year following his mayoral term has been all "up" for Eastwood.

He is scheduled to go to court in Los Angeles on May 31 (his 59th birthday), where he will present a defense against a palimony suit brought by longtime companion Sondra Locke.

The suit has landed Eastwood on the front covers of The National Enquirer, and People magazine, as gossip-mongers clamor for a peek into his private life.

Locke claims that Eastwood, ending a 13-year relationship, tossed her out of the two homes they shared in Los Angeles and forced her to have two abortions and a tubal ligation.

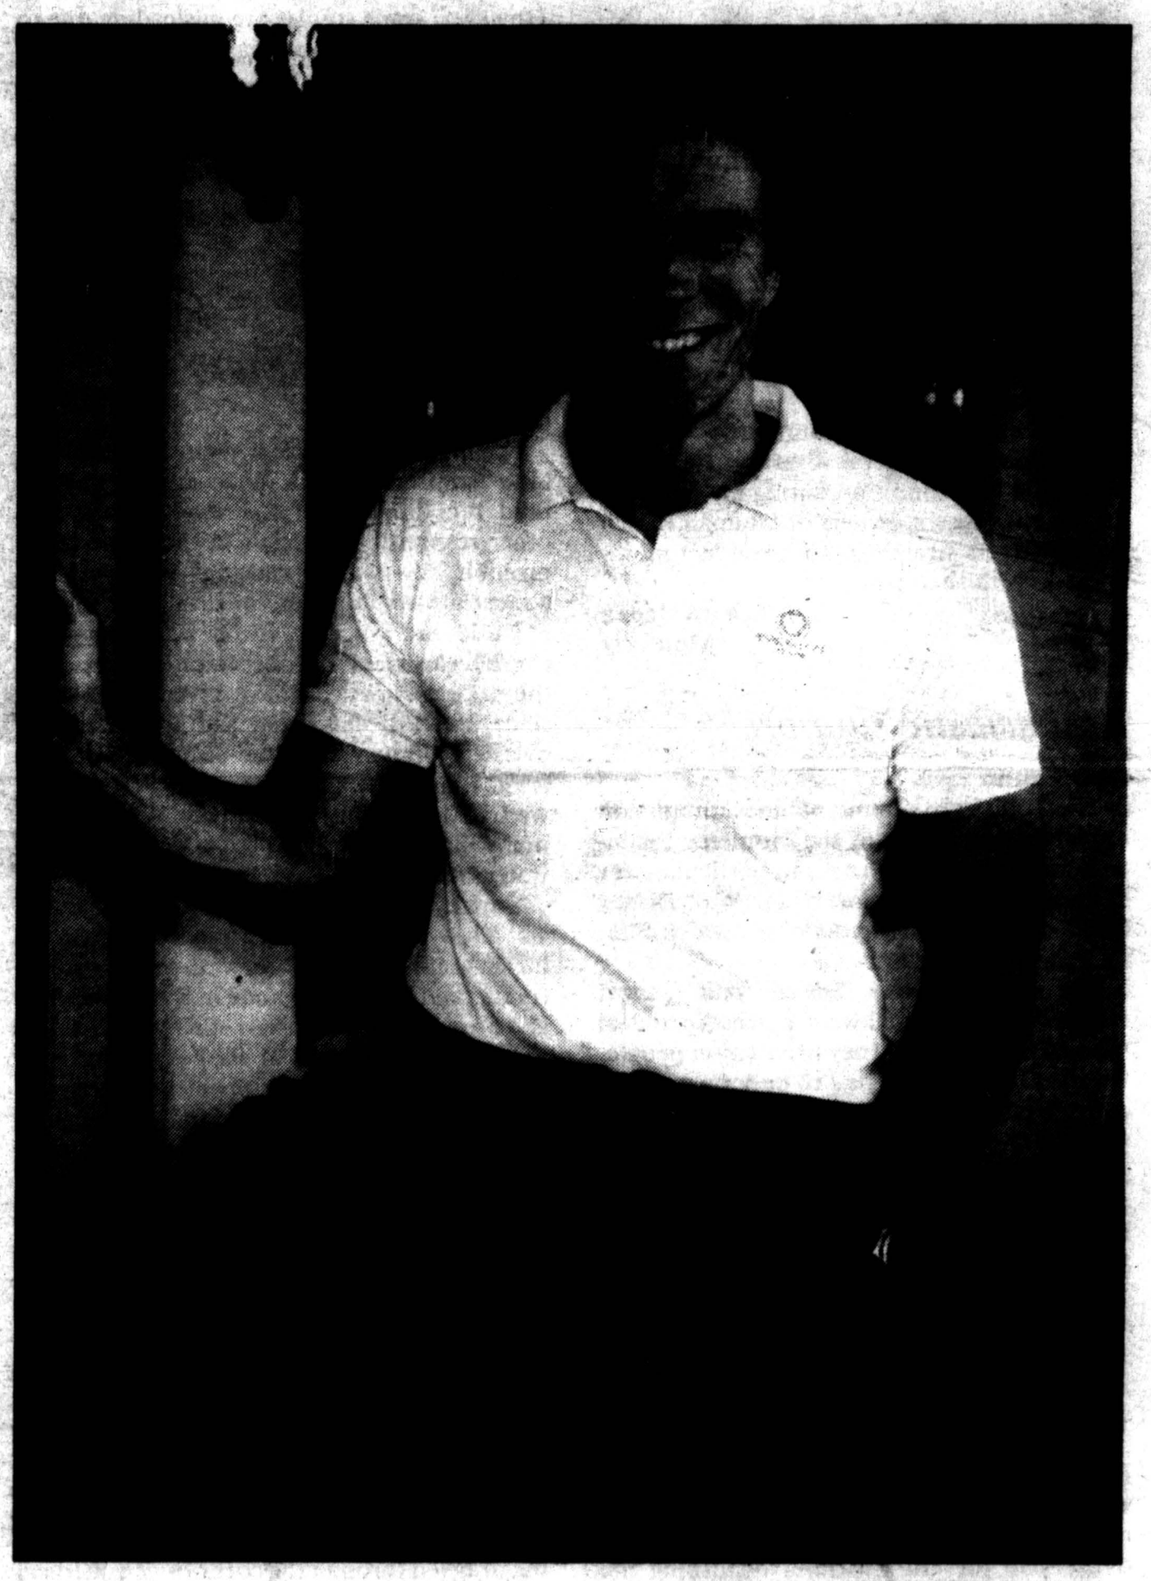
She is suing Eastwood for the two homes and millions of dollars.

While Eastwood said he "does not want to try that in the press," he opened up somewhat to The Pine Cone.

'It's tough to see people fabricate a very thin case built upon perjury. It's not much fun. (But) that's part of the risk (of being famous), and I'm the target.'

"It's tough to see people fabricate a very thin case built upon perjury," he says of the allegations. "It's not much fun. (But) that's part of the risk (of being famous), and I'm the target."

Eastwood currently lives with his son Kyle when he is in Los Angeles.



FORMER MAYOR Clint Eastwood, while maintaining a low profile, still enjoys speaking his mind when it comes to matters affecting Carmel. (Mac McDonald photo.)

IN CARMEL last week during a break between projects, Eastwood said he seldom thinks back on his days as mayor. He chooses instead to concentrate on the present.

"Whatever I'm doing, I'm doing all the way," he says. "I talk about it now and then, but I'm not the look-back type."

Eastwood says he has "never thought about" running for mayor again in the future, although he jokes about signing up for the planning commission.

Besides, he says, "It's important for a city to have new blood."

To force Eastwood back into the public arena, there would have to be a cause sufficient enough to put his film career on the backburner.

Currently he is taking a typically low-key approach to plans for a reservoir to be built partially on his property in Carmel Valley.

He claims that his Canada de la Segunda Reservoir project is ecologically sound and would provide much-needed water for the peninsula — not necessarily for more growth.

"I don't think there has to be a building spree based on it (reservoir)," he says. "There could be, but there doesn't have to be."

He blames the allocation system brought about by the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District for establishing the current building trend in Carmel.

Some speculators are demolishing historic Carmel homes situated on two lots and building two homes on the land, thus doubling density and profits.

That is happening because the builders believe there will be a moratorium due to lack of water, he says

"If we didn't have this pendulum hanging over us it would allow people to stay more modest and not rush out and construct something," he says. "The water management district should be able to regulate the water."

Eastwood adds that he refuses to be pulled into the fray at the expense of his peace of mind.

"I'm not wed to any of this stuff," he says. "It's just a suggestion."

Unfortunate typo

Dear Editor:

On May 18, an unfortunate typographical error occurred in the front page caption identifying an historic house on 13th Avenue.

It should have read the Grace McGowan Cooke house and the cove at the foot of 13th Avenue, where pioneer Carmelites gathered to pound abalones for succulent suppers as they sang verses of the Abalone Song, should have been identified as Cooke's Cove.

Get it straight

Dear Editor:

In reference to the article on the Holman Ranch, Carmel Valley (May 4), I would like to set the record straight.

From 1981 to 1986, I lived on the ranch and managed the property. At no time, during this period, was any portion of the Holman Ranch, including the main house which was occupied by myself and my family, used as an illegal campground, crash pad, or party hangout.

As to weed-shrouded courtyards, crumbling mortar, and general disarray, the ranch was not in that condition during my tenure. I suggest the present owners of Holman Ranch get their facts straight before conducting interviews with the press.

Enthusiastic support

Dear Editor:

The Monterey County Film Commission applauds the citizens of the Monterey Peninsula and of Pacific Grove, in particular, for their enthusiastic support of the Walt Disney Studios film, Turner and Hooch, which filmed here in April.

The Pacific Grove, Seaside and Carmel Police departments all were a pleasure to deal with, according to Disney production people. Pacific Grove, which had to be somewhat inconvenienced for more than a week, took the whole experience in stride and many store owners benefitted from purchases by the crew. Even those whose businesses were blocked for a day of shooting understood and were good natured about it.

The several hundred people who appeared as "background" or "atmosphere" in several scenes were given an experience to enjoy and talk about for months and years to come.

From an economic standpoint, the Disney folks left hundreds of thousands of dollars with community businesses, an intensive and rapid infusion of dollars which few other activities can provide...without disturbing the air, water, quality of life or creating huge traffic jambs.

For these reasons, the commission is continuing its efforts to attract more major film and TV commercial projects to the county and welcomes communitywide participation in those efforts.

Parking and money

Dear Editor:

I read, with interest, the article in the May 11, issue of your newspaper regarding opinions of European traffic expert Rolf Monheim. I suggest that Carmel's "City Fathers" read the April 28, 1988 Los Angeles Times article on pedestrian walkway or the European type of business. Eighty percent of this type of business developed in the U.S. since 1958 have failed. This article will explain why the failures. Property developers however, have informed me that the failure rate is actually higher than 80 percent.

Mr. Monheim said, "It would be nice for visitors to be forced to walk—you can't discover by car." To insist that visitors walk also insists that locals walk. That will cause financial harm for Carmel. Carmel is busy because it is loved as is. To change Carmel will take from it what people come here for—therefore, not as many people will continue to return.

The study of automobile traffic and parking and their relationship to money spent in business is interesting and revealing. However, some studies are misleading due to desired results by those paying for the studying.

The Monterey Peninsula is the only area in which I have vacationed since my move to Tahoe City in 1976. The peninsula is a second home for me.

Diminishing beauty

Dear Editor:

I'm basically a simple person. I can understand simple concepts. Why can't I understand the thinking of the water board and other responsible officials in their refusal to prohibit new water hook-ups when we are almost always in a state of drought?

I add my voice to those who decry the overdevelopment of our exquisite area for the sake of profit. I have loved living here since 1962. It has been sad to watch the overdevelopment that has occurred. Carmel is no longer the exquisite jewel that it once was. Its beauty has diminished. We have too many houses, shops, people, cars for our water capacity.

So why do we continue to build? Why do we allow new building to occur when we haven't enough water for our present structures...and there is no hope in the world that, given our weather pattern, this will ever improve? After 10 years of studies, we have no reservoir to alleviate the problem either.

Hear these words of wisdom: "Enough is enough!" Many people have cared enough to write to the Pine Cone about their fear of evermore development. Does anyone in the position of authority listen? Am I unfair if I perceive in the decision-making a decided bias toward the interests of business as against those of residents?

Witnessing small dogs, mostly beagles, being dragged through the corridor of a medical school by students in the pharmacology department was enough for me to forego many lunch hours. It turned off all thoughts of food.

The dogs would sense that drugs would be

Fighting heart disease

Dear Editor:

Volunteers have collected more than $90,000 from their neighbors during the 1989 American Heart Association residential drive in the tri-county area. Residents in Carmel contributed generously raising $6,020 for heart research and education.

The American Heart Association appreciates the 2,702 volunteers who collect in their neighborhoods. These people donate their time and energy for a task that requires a sense of personal motivation and willingness to give to the community. Their hard work has paid off this year, as all Central Mission Trails records for February campaigns have been broken with the $90,000 plus that has been collected. The 1988 residential campaign raised $86,605.

Why should people be concerned about heart disease? Of our current U.S. population of about 241 million, nearly 66 million people suffer from some form of cardiovascular disease. This means more than one in four Americans. And, almost one of two Americans die from cardiovascular disease.

Cental Mission Trails volunteers and contributors should feel pleased with their efforts to fight back against heart disease with their oustanding 1989 residential campaign effort.

Equal law

Dear Editor:

I hope the day never comes when one segment of our society can force another segment to obey them on the subject of personal reproduction. If the law doesn't apply to everyone in America, high or low, then it's a lousy law, and you and I know that should Roe vs. Wade be overturned, this law will certainly apply only to those people that cannot afford the most expensive medical care to attend to their abortions.

C'mon now—can you imagine the daughters of the privileged and the wealthy going up a back alley for a dangerous abortion?

The female has been victimized long enough. The macho men for a long, long time denied women the right to vote and that was as wrong as it could be.

Why does the male prey on the female so very, very often simply because she is physically vulnerable? The rape rate in this country is hideous and sexual abuse toward little children seems out of control. In a recent case a baby 18 months old was brutally raped!

The protesters should discard their signs and bombs and work on the many critical problems we face. So many children in poverty: others sleeping in the streets with their parents and kids as young as 9 and 10 running away from home.

Perhaps they could adopt some of these children. Everyone concerned would be happy and no laws would be broken.

Cold logic

Dear Editor:

I have a little something to add to the stew concerning the abortion vs. pro-life issue.

I do not wish to take sides, but I think that it is about time for a little cold logic to enter the picture. Case in point: Consider the plight of a 13 or 14-year-old girl who finds herself pregnant. At first she elects to carry the baby full term and then changes her mind and commits suicide before the end of the third month of the pregnancy.

Now, according to the pro-life crowd, the unborn child (fetus) is a viable human life, but I submit that it isn't; and the proof lies in the fact that without the use of the mother's body, it cannot complete the necessary growth to become a live and independent person.

So in fact no murder is commited on the occasion of an abortion during the first three months of pregnancy when all that occurs is the interruption of what would indeed have become a live person if the pregnancy were allowed to continue.

I think that a lot of the rhetoric about the crime of abortion, if honestly analyzed would boil down to the judgment of people who use sex for recreation rather than procreation, and those who feel so strongly about it would like to punish those who they feel abuse that activity.

First steps taken to form the 'Town of Pebble Beach'

By DAVID LELAND

A TOWN'S a town, the saying goes, unless it's a city. Make no mistake, there is a difference — especially in Pebble Beach.

'The company's attorney has given the same general opinion that something may happen to the gates. They have not come forward with any specific resolution.'

— George Murphy

Before voting on a resolution involving incorporation of Pebble Beach, Pebble Beach Community Services District directors questioned wording in the measure calling for the new jurisdiction to be known as the "Town of Pebble Beach."

Edward Keith, president of the Committee to Incorporate Pebble Beach, quickly set the record straight.

"A city brings up visions of a large civic center," he said of the committee's logic. "A town is more of a residentially oriented community."

So be it.

PBCSD directors then unanimously overruled concerns voiced by Pebble Beach Co. officials and adopted the measure.

That action came after a terse statement issued during last Friday's meeting by Steve Eimer, executive vice president of the Pebble Beach Co., in which the company pleaded for "further study" of the resolution.

Eimer cited concerns of "property rights, liability and overall quality of life" being threatened if incorporation takes place.

He did not provide specific examples during his testimony, and told The Pine Cone that "we've spoken about that previously."

The general consensus at the meeting, however, held that the company was concerned about the access gates coming down and possibly its ability to build out a portion of the forest.

Under incorporation the permit process would be administered by the Town of Pebble Beach instead of Monterey County.

PBCSD counsel, Rob Wellington, assured the board that gated communities on private land are legal in the state and that incorporation would not affect that status.

If incorporated, the Pebble Beach Co. would retain private ownership of the roads and gates.

The feeling at PBCSD headquarters, where about 50 people gathered last Friday, centered on the idea that Pebble Beach residents should decide the fate of incorporation.

"My mother used to tell me that there's a very hot place in hell for those that won't make up their mind," said resident Dick Lord, referring to the Pebble Beach Co.'s request for a delay.

Agreeing with Lord was PBCSD Director George Murphy.

"The company's attorney has given the same general opinion that something may happen to the gates," he said. "They have not come forward with any specific resolution."

Adoption of the resoultion sets up an election date as early as April 10, 1990 in which Pebble Beach residents will decide on the issue of incorporation.

A simple majority is needed to decide the issue.

THE RESOLUTION puts to rest a process that failed for the first time in 1976, and was attempted again in 1979.

This time, however, the PBCSD has found supporting evidence that incorporation would be a boon to forest residents.

For example, had Pebble Beach been incorporated during 1987-88, it would have experienced a surplus of $2.8 million, according to consultant Fred Christensen.

But Christensen added that after capital improvements those numbers would be lowered.

"That's a substantial surplus and I don't want to mislead you," he said.

Among tasks facing Pebble Beach if it incorporates are:

- Bring the water lines up to fire code at a cost of $7.5 million.
- Repairing the water system at $2.5 million.
- Replace the pump station at $2 million.

In all, the forest needs about $12 million worth of capital improvements, according to PBCSD President David Sprenger.

Were the community to incorporate, it would also be responsible for general government, police protection, traffic control, planning and land use regulation, building inspection and animal control.

In part, those services would be paid for by the $2.4 million garnered annually in hostelry taxes from the Inn at Spanish Bay and The Lodge at Pebble Beach.

Currently that money goes to the county, and represents about 4 percent of its discretionary fund.

Christensen said it is about time Pebble Beach reaps the harvest from hostelry taxes.

Pebble Beach currently receives "limited services from the county," he said.

"The community has been providing a substantial amount of revenue to the county for some time with relatively few services in return by comparison to other urban unincorporated communities in Monterey County," he said.

With the adoption of the resoultion, the matter now goes to the Local Agecy Formation Commission (LAFCO), which will prepare a report to be issued by Oct. 24.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors will proclaim an April election if less than 50 percent of Pebble Beach protest incorporation.

If more than 50 percent oppose the issue the project will be abandoned.

Christensen said that with a potential of 230 days of delays available to the agencies during the process, the election could be held as late as November 1990.

Planners split on changes to Carmel's design review

By NANCY HILLS

AGREEING TO disagree was an important step for the Carmel Planning Commission when it conducted a study session on changes to residential codes and design review.

At their May 24 study session, the planning commissioners found that each stayed firm in their stance on how to best implement changes in the code to get better residential designs for new houses and additions.

'There are two approaches — one is to make the houses smaller, which in my mind doesn't make them look any better. (The other) is to use a better design review mechanism.'

— Stephen Poohar

The commission decided that it would present arguments for both viewpoints to the council, though one side had enough votes to carry the majority. The commissioners' report to the council is due in July.

That majority, four commissioners, maintains that stricter code regulations are the means to regulate housing design in Carmel. Changes would include greater setbacks around the buildings, tighter height restrictions and less building coverage per lot.

"I think it is very difficult to remain consistant without the specific codes. Three months later someone else can come down the line and we forget what we said before," planning commission chairperson Olof Dahlstrand said.

The proponents of objective, numerical standards are Dahlstrand, and commissioners Fred Keeble, Ed Hicks and John Kennedy. Dahlstrand, Keeble and Hicks are all architects.

"Increasing setbacks is not supposed to replace design review," Dahlstrand said. It is to alleviate the closeness of the houses and set standards for everyone to follow.

"I just hate to use subjective judgment on these decisions," he added.

"A designer has to have some criteria of what he is working toward," Keeble said. "If he is a good designer, he will design a good house. If he is a poor designer, a bad house."

The other side feels that the code already has the necessary direction for good design, but the commission needs to enforce its design review discretionary powers more.

That would entail telling the architect, designer or owner that the design is unacceptable and why. That includes how the design fits in with the surrounding neighborhood and could lead to restricting homes to less than the legally allowed setbacks and lot coverage.

Proponents of that approach are commissioners Carla Ramsey, Stephen Poohar and Bill Brown. (In the annual meeting at the end of the session, Ramsey was elected to replace Dahlstrand as chairperson of the commission.)

Ramsey mentioned some new homes on Junipero Avenue and Ninth Avenue as examples of houses which everyone is "generally agreed are not the most attractive."

"I don't think making them smaller would make them more so," she said.

Poohar said that the diverse types of building sites in Carmel requires flexibility, but with design review, the commission can customize its decisions and requests.

Carmel City Atty. Don Freeman told the commission that the courts have given planning commissions wide latitude and extensive powers during design review, citing a case from the city of Pacifica.

In that case, the court upheld a law that prohibits houses the ordinance described as "ticky-tacky." Such ambiguous language, subject to interpretation by the planning commission of what "ticky-tacky" consistitutes, is legal, the judge decided.

Though the three architects opposed requiring more visual information from applicants to assist in design review, the rest of the commission felt it was important.

Ramsey argued that to determine how a house will fit in with the neighborhood and site, the applicant should prepare a photomontage of the street.

The commission reached a compromise solution when it decided to allow the applicant to choose what kind of additional visual information he or she would supply. That information would have to include the surrounding lots of the proposed building site.

The commission also decided that:

- Permitted lot coverage should be judged on a sliding scale: the larger the lot, the less percentage of lot coverage allowed.
- Applications should include exterior lighting and landscaping plans.
- There would be no "bonus" plan for that permit for an increase in building size if "certain design objectives are met" such as no overhanging building elements, reduced plate height, no straight vertical two-story planes within 8 feet of any sideyard.

The commission decided that these should be a part of the design without any bonus plan, and a bonus plan in the residential district would be unwieldy and difficult to administer.

BEFORE THE meeting, associate planner Brian Roseth compared the two planning approaches the commission was to discuss.

"The first school of thought would prefer to see changes in unambiguous design standard. That bases permits on dimensional standards and if met those standards, it would be approved. In its purest form there would be very little discretion in approving a permit," Roseth explained.

"The other school uses more discretion on the part of the decision-making body in its evaluation of how a particular design fits in with the site and surrounding neighborhood," he said.

The current code uses a little of both and allows the planning commission, acting as design review board, to exercise its discretion on how a house fits in with a site.

Carmel loses an honored citizen

WHEN ROBERT Spencer, 87, died May 11, the city lost one of those citizens that represented old Carmel and influenced its development.

During his 53 years as a Carmel citizen, Spencer served as a Carmel City Councilman, started Spencer's Stationery, which graced Ocean Avenue for 50 years and was a founding member of Carmel Rotary.

He served as a president of that organization and also a president of the Carmel Business Association. In 1963, he served as Carmel City Clerk on an interim basis.

He also served as member of the Monterey Peninsula Airport board.

"He was one those very nice people, a part of old Carmel. With his death, it's another turning of the page," said Carmel restauranter Greg Cellitti.

Spencer was also recently a partner in Cypress Mortgage Co. in Carmel Valley.

His nephew, Donald Rowe, remembered him as a fine man who was "well-loved by his family" and "knew just what to say at the right time."

"His sense of timing was just right" in everything he did, Rowe said, from starting Rotary Club and Spencer's to knowing when to speak and what to say.

He was a pilot and loved to fly, Rowe said, and helped start a flying club on the Monterey Peninsula.

ROBERT "BOB" Spencer, May 22, 1901 — May 11, 1989.

Both Spencer and his wife, Helen, loved to travel and their last trip was to Hong Kong in January. It was their 10th time visiting that city.

"He had the ability to make friends everywhere. When foreigners would visit Carmel, he would open up his house to them," Rowe said.

Survivors include his wife, Helen, and several nieces and nephews.

A memorial service took place May 17 at the Church of the Wayfarer.

The Carmel Pine Cone honors the passing of this Carmel citizen and extends its sympathies to his family.

'Pink Cadillac' in benefit at Lighthouse Cinemas

CLINT EASTWOOD'S latest film, Pink Cadillac, will get a premiere screening at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 25 at Lighthouse Cinemas in Pacific Grove in a benefit for Alzheimer's Association of Monterey County and the Family Service Agency.

The screening will be preceded at 7 by a champagne and hors d'oeuvres reception. Tickets are $20 per person in advance, $25 at the door.

Eastwood stars in the film as Tommy Nowak, a "skip-tracer" or bounty hunter working out of Sacramento who prefers the crafty approach to outsmarting and apprehending bail jumpers rather than the confrontive approach. Nowak is sent to retrieve one Lou Ann McGuinn (Bernadette Peters), whose husband is an ex-con linked to white supremacists. She has just been busted for passing counterfeit bills, she is in possession of an 8-month-old baby and is headed to Reno, Nev., in a 1959 pink Cadillac. But Nowak isn't the only one after her; the white supremacists are after the rest of the bogus bills in the Cadillac.

The film was directed by Buddy Van Horn (who also directed Eastwood's last film, The Dead Pool), produced by David Valdes and co-stars Timothy Carhart, John Dennis Johnston, and Michael Des Barres.

The film features music by Randy Travis, Hank Williams Jr., Dion, Robben Ford, Southern Pacific and Little Feat.

The film opens in nationwide release on Friday, May 26. (It opens that day at the Lighthouse Cinemas.)

Supes halt development in order for closer study

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER HEARING conflicting testimony regarding a Carmel Highlands building project, county supervisors on Tuesday decided to take a look for themelves.

Before the board was an appeal lodged by Rod Holmgren concerning a Monterey County Planning Commission decision of Feb. 22.

The commission had unanimously allowed Richard Gushman to construct four single-family lots on his property located east of Highway 1, off Mount Devon and Corona roads.

"This piece of property is a very significant piece of property," said 1st District Supervisor Marc Del Piero before asking for a continuance. "I don't want to make a mistake."

The supervisors will travel to the property at their convenience, with no formal field trip scheduled.

With public testimony now closed, the board will take the matter up again at 3:25 p.m. Tuesday, June 6, in the supervisors chambers in Salinas.

Gushman was also appealing several conditions contained in his building permit, but agreed to those stipulations during this week's hearing and dropped his appeal.

Opponents of the building permit charge that Gushman is ruining the viewshed on the ridge overlooking the coast.

They say that a lot line adjustment has increased density and violated the Carmel Area Land Use Plan.

After Gushman found out that one of his home sites was located in a "sensitive" area and was unbuildable, he moved his lot lines to enable him to build four homes in slightly different locations on the property.

The 310-acre property now contains lots of 9, 11, 65 and 86 acres.

"Lot line adjustments are appropriate in some instances," said resident and land use attorney Margery Fernald. "Yet they are clearly inappropriate as a means of bypassing the local land use plan requirements."

Both Fernald and Palo Colorado resident Todd Acheson claim that the homes will be visible from the highway if trees blocking the view are cut down in the future.

But Mark Blum, an attorney representing Gushman, told the board that the houses would not be visible because that stipulation is contained in the permit.

'Lot line adjustments are appropriate in some instances. Yet they are clearly inappropriate as a means of bypassing the local land use plan requirements.'
— Margery Fernald

"I don't think you can ask for more protection than that," he said.

County Planning Director Bob Slimmon told the board that the county would be vigilant regarding illegal tree removal.

"Anytime somebody can see something (from the road), the job will be stopped," he said. "I can guarantee that."

When asked what would happen if the trees were cut down, Efren Iglesia, deputy county counsel, assured the board that a court injunction would be in order.

Fernald was not appeased.

"I don't think anyone would ask them to remove their houses at that point," she said, referring to a situation in which people are already living in the homes in the future.

Carmel's character being squeezed out by profits

By NANCY HILLS

IN 1905, Mabel Grey Lachmund built a small home on three lots on Lincoln Street — then simply gave away half a lot so a neighbor could have more room. Land was cheap.

In 1989, Mabel Grey Lachmund is gone and so is such easy generosity: land is no longer cheap.

At $200,000 for a 4,000-square-foot lot, "more room" is becoming a memory of the past.

A concert pianist and avant-garde resident who helped give early Carmel its reputation as an cultural and artistic colony, there's a question whether Mabel Grey Lachmund would find a place in the Carmel of today.

Her granddaughter, a third generation Carmelite, is facing that question for herself.

While Mabel Grey's widowed daughter-in-law Barbara Lachmund lives in the virtually unchanged one-bedroom cottage on Lincoln Street, across town her granddaughter, Linda Lachmund Smith, rents another house that she will soon lose to rising land prices.

For 14 years, Smith and her husband, Jackson, have rented a two-story house with an adjoining lot at the junction of Guadalupe Street and Valley Way.

They lived there, with their cats and other assorted animals, while she gardened, painted and developed her photograpic skills and he worked distributing health care products.

For 12 years, Smith used the extra lot to garden, one of the ways she carried on her grandmother's Carmel traditions.

The editors of Time-Life Books selected a picture of the Smiths' garden to appear appear in the December release of American Country Gardens, one of series of garden books.

By then, it will probably be only a picture on a page.

The house and adjoining garden lot were both recently sold and, according to the Smiths, a "spec" (speculation) home will soon occupy the space where the garden grows.

The rented house, resold separately from the garden lot, so far is destined to be a spec remodel.

"To me, this is representative of what is happening all over Carmel. It used to be that gardening and gardeners are really a tradition in old Carmel. Gradually, you are going to find there isn't going to be any more room for gardeners or gardens." Linda Smith lamented.

For the Smiths, as heartbreaking as losing the garden is the destruction of the habitat it provides for wildlife, such as the many birds that visit or live in the bushes and feed in the garden.

LINDA LACHMUND Smith (right), and her mother, Barbara Lachmund, stand in Linda's garden that will appear in Time-Life Books series on gardens of America, one selected to appear in American Country Gardens book. However, the land and house rented by Smith was sold and the garden will soon be plowed under for a new house. (Nancy Hills photo.)

"It affects the whole neighborhood," Smith said.

Both the Smiths feel they live the "bohemian lifestyle" Carmel was once known for throughout the world, prizing their garden, nature and artistic endeavors more than making money.

They received a 30-day notice at the beginning of May, and through local attorney Tom Nash are investigating their legal options.

In the meantime, with the sale of their rental home, the Smiths join the ranks of the many Carmel residents and artists who cannot afford to buy a new home in their own hometown.

THE SITUATION presents an unhappy choice for the Smiths and Linda's mother.

The family always wanted to keep the 1905 house and land as it was when Carmel was young.

Even though Mabel Grey handed one-half a parcel to a neighbor some 84 years ago, the original two-and-one-half lots with the tiny Carmel cottage on Lincoln Street remains an unusual patch of oaks and ivy.

Carmel Middle School golfers not a bunch of duffers

By DAVID LELAND

NO DUFFERS need apply for the Carmel Middle School golf team — the scores of the top 10 players rival many adult golfers.

Coming off an undefeated season, the team, coached by Dick Zury, has amazed observers since they started off the season by winning the Mission Trails Junior Athletic League Golf Championship.

"I think we just have a group of boys who started out at a very early age and have come on strong," says Zury, adding that the top 10 players average under 50 strokes for nine holes. "It's very seldom you get a group like this."

Leading the pack is seventh-grader Dan Wheeler, 13.

Wheeler's expertise was evident during the final competition of the year, which featured the top four players from each school in the league (Walter Colton Junior High, Pacific Grove Middle School and San Benancio), playing 18 holes at Carmel Valley Ranch.

The youngster shot a sizzling 74.

"They played from the ladies tees but that's still damn good," says Zury, adding that the previous high score for the competition had been 82.

Wheeler, who calls Australian golf pro Greg Norman his favorite, credits his instructor Ben Doyle with his success.

"When I get out of college I'm going to come back and work with Ben," says Wheeler of the pro at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Wheeler says he first became interested in golf at the age of 10 while visiting with friends at Lake Tahoe.

"I knew that I wanted to play so I bought some clubs," he says of his feeling after the initial round. "I have to give my parents credit (though), they drive me around."

Wheeler says one of the positive things about golf is that, unlike sports such as football where you can easily get hurt, you can continue to play golf your entire life.

"It's something you can do forever," he says.

The competing players on the middle school team include Jay Sheppard, Joe Fernandez, Alex Vorobiov, Adrian Bernstein and Matt Riegel — all seventh-graders.

What that means is that next year they will return even stronger in defense of their title.

"You can't improve on a perfect record," says Zury. "But I can start looking for stiffer competition."

Planners split on design review

Within the code are design review guidelines which instruct the commission to judge a new home on its mass, bulk and consistency with the surrounding neighborhood.

Both approachs have drawbacks.

With the first school of thought utilizing the objective numerical standards, in its strictest form, no design review would be required. If the house meets the code, it would be approved, no matter what materials it is built of, or how good a design it is.

The second school of thought, using more discretion, in its extreme is subject to political and personal abuses and can leave architects and designers confused about city requirements, Roseth said.

"It is a question of how much discretion the commission wants to use," he said.

POOHAR HAS maintained a strong position for retaining the current code and utilizing design review powers more. In an interview conducted prior to the May 24 meeting, he outlined the arguments for that position.

"There are two approaches — one is to make the houses smaller, which in my mind doesn't make them look any better. (The other) is to use a better design review mechanism."

To do that, Poohar said that applicants and the planning staff should provide the commission with more information about the proposed house.

Poohar supports the idea that an application should include a photomontage that relates the project to the surrounding neighborhood. It should also have exterior lighting and landscaping plans.

"I can't, as a layman, decide what is to be built from a line drawing," he said.

"The designs that come to us are not thinking about the setting the building is going into," he said. "A house on Casanova Street may look great there but look terrible on Santa Rita."

Right now the commission "tries the best we can" to implement design review but there is a "great reluctance to go as far as we can go" with the commission's discretionary powers, he said.

Currently, the code permits a total of 1,800 square feet, 200 square feet of that for a garage, on a 4,000-square-foot lot, which is the average lot size in Carmel.

To reduce that any more, Poohar said, is impractical.

"When you start getting below 1,600 square feet, well, who are you designing those houses for? What kind of market are you looking at?" he said.

"Do we tell the people (who need 1,600 square feet), to move to Marina or Carmel Valley?"

Reducing the total square footage to 1,400 square feet, shaving off 200 square feet, does not make much difference in its exterior look but that extra 200 square feet can "make a lot of difference in the living inside," he said.

People who move here now, Poohar said, are living in their residences full time. In the past many of the cottages were summer or vacation homes.

Another problem he sees is that as land goes up in value, more parcels that would not have been built on because of the topography, are now being utilized.

"In the past, houses were built to conform to the land. Now we are seeing design where it is obvious that the designer or architect has not even seen the site," he said.

Money squeezing out city's past

It forms an unofficial "green belt" on Lincoln Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues, an example of what is called "borrowed open space."

That is land not officially declared open space, but still subject to development, including gardens, undeveloped lots, open air over one-story structures, even parking lots and streets.

It is a disappearing commodity in a town with lots an average of 4,000 square feet, 2,000 square feet smaller than the norm for most California cities.

Unable to find another house for an affordable rent or buying price, the Smiths and Linda's mother are caught between building a home on the now-open Lincoln Street land for the couple to live in, or selling the property that has been left virtually unchanged by her family for three generations.

"People tell my mother or me that 'You're sitting on $600,000.' But I don't want to look at it like that." Smith said, appalled that that is all people see when they look at the oaks and the house.

Rather than sell the family property, the Smiths have opted to build a small, old-style Carmel cottage on the property, attempting to retain as many trees and open space as they can. Even that disturbs her.

She sees so few others willing to sacrifice anything to keep the open spaces left in town, and people cashing in on Carmel's and California land prices, Linda Smith wonders if it is worth it.

They could sell the whole piece of property to a developer, take the money, and move somewhere else, she said.

"Things here have really changed (in Carmel). I'm feeling like it is almost a lost cause. I'm feeling very discouraged and ask myself 'Do I want to sacrifice myself for Carmel?' " she said.

"We would have preserved it if we had gotten support from the community," she added.

The gravity of the moon is about one sixth that of earth.

LIFE AND PROPERTY NEEDS PROTECTION

There is no crime wave in Carmel. Compared with other placs of like population, commission of what the law terms felonies is extremely small.

But occasionally there are crimes committed here, mostly in districts farthest removed from the center of town. Within the last year a number of burglaries have been reported, a woman was attacked on the street, there was a man murdered, automobiles have been stolen, traffic laws have been violated, and bootleggers are said to be operating here.

The foregoing is not written to arouse fear, nor is it directed at any local or other official. It is written to call attention to the fact that Carmel, a city of approximately two thousand people, is inadequately policed and protected. The one man on duty is a painstaking and alert officer. But it is not a one-man job. More police protection should be provided.

FIRE SIREN ONLY WHISPERS

Carmel's fire department's latest acquisition in gadgets, the coded siren which many residents have yet to hear in spite of a lengthy test two weeks ago on a quiet Sunday afternoon and a couple of fire calls since then, stands revealed this week as a plaything worth $628.30 more than the trade-in value of our old siren which for years whooped it up with real devotion to Fire Chief Robert Leidig and the volunteer fire laddies.

Telling Fire Commissioner Everett Smith of numerous complaints regarding the new soft-voiced coded siren, Ranald Cockburn, Pine Cone publisher, asked that the city hold up payment until the department had been given satisfaction.

MORE EXPERTS VIEW STRANGE TREE DAMAGE

Experts continued this week closing in on the strange malady affecting our trees and shrubs.

Dr. Arthur McCain, plant pathologist from the agricultural extension service of the University of California, Berkeley, toured the blighted area, along Scenic Drive south from Tenth, Monday afternoon with Mayor Herb Banks.

They were accompanied by Paul Miller, a research assistant in pathology from the university, Roy Bardin from the Monterey County Agriculture commission and Bill Huffman, Monterey County Farm Advisor from the University of California.

Dr. McCain collected numerous samples from the affected plants, which he took back to Berkeley for analysis. He said it would be at least ten days before any information would be available from the testing.

CARRYING GASOLINE? BETTER BE CAREFUL!

A serious fire caused by improperly capped gasoline cans in a truck on Holman Highway two weeks ago has prompted fire officials to issue stern warnings to motorists about the dangers of storing extra gasoline in their car or home.

"They've got a bomb in their car," said Carmel Assistant Fire Chief Vern Allred, referring to the makeshift containers some motorists are using during the current fuel crunch.

Allred said the danger of gasoline fire or explosion is further increased in Carmel because of gasoline leaking from cars with tanks "topped off." With the hills and angle parking in Carmel, Allred said it is "almost a daily occurrence" that his department has to wash down gas leaking from a car.

DIRTY HARRY SHOT DOWN BY CARMEL CITY COUNCIL

The fate of actor Clint Eastwood's proposed downtown complex is uncertain after the Carmel City Council shot down his plans May 15.

Architect George Brook-Kothlow used a 45-minute slide show of the various architectural sites in Carmel to convince the council that the modern-style building is compatible with the character of the village.

But the council was unconvinced and determined that the proposed two-story retail and office complex violates city philosophy toward size and bulk of buildings as seen from the public way.

CMS students show their concern about conservation

(Editor's Note: The following essays were written by Carmel Middle School students who are involved in the CMS Conservation Club. One is an introduction explaining what the club is doing and the other two are examples of topics the students have chosen to write on. Susan Armstrong is the instructor.)

Recycling

By CHARLES MONCRIEF

THE CARMEL Middle School Conservation Club (CMSCC) is a class of sixth and seventh-graders who are conserving by recycling paper, planting trees, and educating the public about such things as the greenhouse effect, the ozone hole and other problems.

The CMSCC recycling project works like this: In every classroom there is a recycle box which students put paper in, instead of the garbage. Once a week CMSCC members go around and pick up all the boxes. After that the paper is sorted and stacked. Finally, the stacked paper is sent to the recycling factory.

Also we have a program going that lets students adopt trees and then plant them at home. So far, this project has been successful.

For more information call Luke Itano at 624-1509.

Rain forests

By ANNABELLE SIINO

RAIN FORESTS are being destroyed at a staggering rate. All the rain forests in India, Bangledesh, Sri Lanka and Haiti have already been destroyed and the Ivory Coast rain forests have been almost completely destroyed.

Rain forests are very important to our world because they are home to about 5 to 10 million plant and animal species in the whole world and almost all the medicines today were made by plants from the rain forests. Without these plants there would be very few medicines.

A lot of the foods we eat also come from rain forests. So why would we want to chop them down?

Rain forests are also extremely important to the atmosphere because when the trees in rain forests are cut down and left to rot or burned, carbon releases into the atmosphere and causes the Green House Effect. So why would someone want to cut down rain forests when they play such an important part for this world to survive?

Here is something you can do to save the rain forest. Do not buy teak and mahogony furniture and don't buy toilet seats made from tropical hardwood. Don't eat beef that does not have its country origin. Write to the world banks to tell them to stop supporting rain forest killing:

Acid Rain

By ZOE CHRISTMAN

A. DYING forests:

1. Woodlands of the Northeast, the Blue Ridge, Appalachias.

2. Half of the Black Forests of Bavaria is already ruined.

3. Soviet Union has reported that vast areas of forest are dying near the manufacturing city of Togliatti!

B. What causes acid rain?

1. Acid deposition occurs when sulfur and nitrogen oxides are transformed in the atmosphere and fall to earth as acids in rain, snow, fog or as any particles.

C. Is acid rain causing the damage?

1. The evidence appears conclusive, that these deposits are responsible for ruining many lakes in Scandinavia and in Eastern North America. This evidence is not nearly as impressive in the matter of our woodland.s

Acid rain is causing incalculable harm! Viewed merely in terms of the damage to forests, the consequences are severe! This ought to be stopped! But how?

Zoe — I think we should try to help this situation! At least close down the biggest nickel factories in the world. Or at least cut down emissions that cause acid rain! After all, not everyone likes what's happening to our environments!

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

I'd rather be sailing

SUMMER APPROACHES. Time for bottoms to be scraped, sails restitched and brass and chrome polished. Sailing has been defined as the fine art of getting wet and becoming ill while slowly going nowhere at great expense. The sailor knows this to be landlubber propaganda, sometimes known as scuttlebutt.

The scuttlebutt was a cask aboard sailing ships filled with water and containing a scuttle (a hole or lid), from which to drink the water, and around which sailors would gather to exchange gossip. It was the shipboard equivalent of today's office water cooler, and scuttlebutt has since come to mean gossip.

Nantucket, which began its life as a whaling station, has given us two terms with nautical histories. A Nantucket sleigh ride has absolutely nothing to do with Dobbin and snow. It refers to the often deadly experience of being pulled along behind a harpooned whale in a 19th century longboat made of fragile wood. In the same way, a Nantucket Camel has nothing at all to do with a desert-roaming mammal. It was, instead, a device used off the Cape to float whaling vessels across the sand bars which surround the islands. It takes its name from the two flotation devices which support the ship on either side, similar to the two humps of the camel. The Camel was also used to raise sunken ships which posed a hazard to navigation.

The Vikings have left us a nautical term or two. Gone by the board is one example. It refers to someone who has gone overboard, the deck on Viking ships being the "board." Today, I suppose it might refer to the removal of a company's chief executive officer by corporate raiders, whose tactics frequently resemble those of the Vikings. Another term is to give the slip, which means, of course, to get away. When vessels found themselves threatened they often couldn't take time to hoist the anchor. The easiest method of a quick exit was to "slip," or cut, the anchor loose. The ship's chandler could always forge a new one.

The term focsle refers to the forward cabin on a boat. It derives from forecastle, which was the foremost and castle-like structure on early warships. Fightingmen were placed here to engage other ships and rain down upon their crews a hail of arrows and speers.

Although not readily recognizable, the term a couple of shakes is also of nautical origin. A sailboat cannot sail directly into the wind, and so it makes its way by tacking, or zigzagging. Ideally, this manuever is accomplished with such skill that the sail shakes very little on each tack. Old salts estimate time by saying "I'll be there in a couple of shakes."

More technical terms include the Aneroid Barometer. This is a meteorogical instrument used to predict the onset of bad weather. Its readings together with rolling seas, dark clouds, heavy rains and high winds indicate the presence of a storm. The Aneroid Barometer may be found in the official Captain's Catalog, a book sanctioned by the Coast Guard and containing a manufacturer's list of items no longer available or dropped from production entirely.

No sailing vessel is complete without charts. These are most useful in protecting cabin and cockpit surfaces from food and beverage stains. They are also color coded so the experienced sailor can easily tell if he is on the water (blue) or on the land (yellow).

It is important to sail with the right gear. Deck shoes are very important to sailors. The deck shoe is designed to provide secure movement while onboard unless the deck is wet, the shoe is worn, the deck is worn, or the shoe is wet. They look great in the club after sailing, though.

A sailor needs to be familiar with the terms latitude and longitude. These are a series of imaginary lines drawn on the Earth's surface at intervals parallel to the Equator (latitude) and the poles (longitude). Since they are invisible, many mariners find them of limited usefulness.

A life preserver, of course, is any flotation device which will keep an individual who has fallen overboard above water long enough to be run over by some idiot in a power boat.

For these latter definitions I am indebted to Sailing: A Dictionary for Landlubbers by Henry Beard and Roy McKie. It has proved to be most enlightening. The one they missed is the definition of a sailboat, which I always understood to be a large fiberglass hole, surrounded by water and into which one pours money.

To many people sailing, or yachting (which is what one does in anything over 40 feet), is incomprehensible. Mike Downey took advantage of this to provide a wonderful doubletalk report of the 1987 America's Cup in Fremantle, Australia, part of which I include here without permission.

"By Fastening the bilge-keels in a fore and aft line on each side of the hull bottom, Trimaran was able to reduce the gilligan-and-gingering capacity to the extent the Kiwi's were unable to outdistance it along the various fabricated sloops of the course."

Hello, Sailor!

Large percentage of residents complying with water rationing

By NANCY HILLS

WILL THEY take a check? What if it's a local one?

Water rationing is about to take a bite out of a few pocketbooks, but with what appears to be 98 percent compliance, it will be just a few.

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Manager Bruce Buel announced that the first letters with penalties for exceeding the water ration have been mailed.

So far one residence has the highest fine — $42,000 — but Buel said he could not reveal the name because it is confidential information.

Of the the first group of meters read — 7,708 commercial and residential meters — 98.4 percent meet the rationing requirements. Only 124 penalty letters are being sent out, Buel said.

"The community has really come through," he said.

The total number of meters in the California-American Water Co. area is about 35,000, he added. It will take about two months to complete the billing cycle for all meters.

The first customers were all in Pacific Grove. Carmel will begin to get its water bills in early June, according to Cal-Am.

It is important for people to remember that rationing is still in effect, Buel said, especially now that the peninsula is entering the hot months when no rainfall is expected.

"We are beginning to 'mine' our aquifers," he said, in other words taking out more water than is going in — no replacement.

"Of the 124 that exceeded their ration, 94 are residential," Buel said, "and 31 are commercial."

The highest commercial fine in this first batch came to $16,750, he said.

All the major water users came in under their water allotment, Buel said, including the major hotels, Pebble Beach golf courses and the U.S. Army's facilities within the water district's boundries.

Since about one-half of commercial users have applied for the averaged ration for business type which, in some cases, permits more water use than used before, it is not known how many actually reduced their water consumption by 20 percent.

The residents automatically get a per resident ration which can add up to more water than the household used before the drought.

The district had sent out warnings during the first two-month go-around of the billing period, which began Jan. 1 when 20-percent rationing was imposed.

In the first billing period, about 10 percent of the customers were over their allotment, Buel said.

If the customer reduced his or her water use during the following two-month period, there would be no penalty. If not, and the water user is still out of compliance, the customer gets charged for both the first billing period's penalty and the second.

Buel said there seemed to be a trend with the meters out of complaince the second time around. Paradoxically, their water use appeared to go up after the first warning.

"Maybe because it was so hot during the two months," Buel said.

The penalties are based on a sliding scale. The first "unit" over is a $25 fine and increases to $250 for the 10th unit over. Those penalties are cumulative — the customer pays the price for each unit. A unit is the measurement on the meter and corresponds to 748 gallons of water.

"Most residential meters use about 10 units a month," Buel said.

Those over have until June 23 to respond and until June 30 to pay up. If they do not, the district ordinance can require a restrictor placed on the meter if it continues to exceed the amount.

Rec programs set for summer

A VARIETY of recreational programs have been scheduled for the summer by the Carmel Unified School District.

Separate programs are being held at Carmel Middle School, Tularcitos, Bay School and River School. The programs will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, June 16 through Sept. 1. (Bay School program begins June 26.)

Carmel Middle School program includes a daily summer sports/fitness program for boys and girls ages 10-14 at CMS taught by John Ables. The program includes tennis, basketball, softball and some weight training. The program is available for five consecutive two-week sessions at $45 each session. Information's at 624-1546.

Tularcitos activities include craft projects, cooking, art, indoor and outdoor games, tennis, dance and creative movement, swimming, reading and special field trips and activities. The program operates on a drop-in basis for children 5-12. For information call 659-5370.

River School has a similar program as Tularcitos, starting June 19 through Sept. 1 for children 5-12.

Bay School's program begins June 26, from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday for children 3-6. Children need not live in CUSD to attend. Activities include arts and crafts, games, storytimes, dramatic play, cooking projects and field trips. There will be no drop-in care for the two-week sessions (minimum attendance of two days per week). Call Barbara Beck for information at 624-1546 or Jenni Eldridge at Bay School, 624-4397.

Registration forms will be available at all schools, with a variety of fee schedules and fee packages available. Latchkey funds are also available. For more information call Barbara Beck at 624-1546.

Swimming class registration open

PRE-REGISTRATION FOR swim classes through the Carmel Unified School District continues through May 31.

Four two-week sessions begin June 19 at the Carmel High School pool coordinated by Diana Whitesides, aquatics supervisor:

I. June 19-30; II. July 3-14; III. July 17-28; IV. July 31-Aug. 11.

Classes offered include Polywogs, Beginners, Advanced Beginners, Intermediates, Swimmers, Advanced Swimmers, Diving and Life Saving. All classes are taught by Red Cross method and all instructors are Red Cross certified.

To register call Kay Keller at 624-1714.

Red Cross sets free blood pressure test

EVERY WEDNESDAY the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross will conduct free blood pressure testing.

The public can receive free testing from 2 to 4 p.m. every Wednesday at the chapter house, Dolores and Eighth in Carmel.

Crossroads robbery

MONTEREY COUNTY Sheriff's deputies are still searching for a gunman who stole $650,000 worth of jewelry from Devata Fine Jewelry in The Crossroads shopping center last Saturday, May 20.

Armed with a medium-sized revolver, the gunman arrived at the jewelry store shortly before closing, wearing sunglasses and carrying a newspaper folded under one arm with the revolver hidden in it.

He ordered the clerk to give him the keys to the display cases and put the contents into a gray plastic waste basket that he carried out with him.

Sheriff's deputy Mark Stevens described the gunman as a white man with black hair, in his 30s and weighing about 150 pounds. He was wearing a white shirt, dark pants and light blue windbreaker with white piping at the time of the robbery.

Anyone with information on the robbery should either call the sheriff's department or Devata owner Jan Dunlap.

Horsing around... September Ranch Stables manager Perry Belmont has announced his association with Toni Venza at the Carmel Valley boarding and training facility.

Venza began her riding career locally and, most recently, has worked as assistant trainer at the well-regarded Foxfield Riding School in Southern California.

Venza offers training in English equitation and jumping as well as general horsekeeping and pleasure riding to equestrians of all ages and levels.

Belmont is a protege of long-respected horseman Ray Hackworth, and has managed September Ranch Stables since Hackworth's death in 1989.

Bank appointment... Longtime Carmel Valley resident Tom Treanor has been named as manager for the Carmel Valley branch of Coast Savings, Monterey Savings Division.

Treanor most recently managed the Monterey Savings Branch in downtown Monterey and has been in the S&L business for more than 21 years.

Treanor is past president of the Monterey County Symphony Association and is also a member of the Monterey County Symphony Guild.

He is also active with the Boy Scouts of America, Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and Monterey Business Association.

New gallery... The Christopher Grimes Gallery is now open on the west side of Dolores between Ocean and Seventh.

The gallery, which exhibits original paintings, sculpture and works on paper by contemporary California artists, was formerly located in Pacific Grove under the name of Site 311 Gallery.

Opening 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 26 through July 15, the gallery will exhibit Michael Brangoccio's new paintings and works on paper.

High honors... Judy Appel, who can be seen driving around Carmel in her "Colorvan," loaded down with more than 5,000 samples of window products, wallcoverings, carpets, furniture and accessories, has received Decorating Den System, Inc.'s Valerie Award.

The honor catapults Appel into the company's Century Society, open only to individuals with annual sales of $100,000 or more.

This is the fifth year Appel has tallied those numbers.

Hospitality award... The Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce has selected "Papa" Vince Vicente to be honored for an award bearing his name for his many years of peninsula service in the tourism industry.

The Papa Vicente award will be given each year to a person whose lifetime achievements bring honor to the industry.

With more than 40 years in hospitality, Vicente has been described as a living treasure — a true classic.

Near 80, he still works at the Sardine Factory, serving as the restaurant's genteel bartender.

Vicente moved to the peninsula in 1940, making his home in a Cannery Row motel. An immigrant from the Phillipines, Vicente has worked a variety of jobs including picking fruit, salmon fishing, and maintenance jobs.

In 1947 he began serving customers at Gallatin's, a popular Monterey night spot. Prior to that he bartended at Mission Ranch in Carmel.

He began his current job with the Sardine Factory in 1970.

All Aboard!

THERE'S NOTHING like boarding the Orient Express for a Saturday evening of international food, fashions, frivolity and a mite of mystery — reliving the glamor of the original Orient Express in its heyday.

Hosts for the journey were George Kloczl and Kathleen Fitzgerald, owners of the restaurant Express d'Orient (named for the famed train), on the site of the former beautiful Willow Tea Room in The Crossroads.

As the train chugged off into the night, champagne bubbled, flowed and more than a few glasses were tipped over in the narrow passageways. The seven-course dinner of Greek, Hungarian, Italian, American and French dishes was interrupted by the discovery of "a flasher" on board.

The crime (involving a violin case), was perpetrated as models pranced on and off stage in Shugart fashions and was duly and punctually reported to Inspector True Boardman. The inspector, speaking with a French accent (being nearer the French than the Austrian border), asked a few pertinent questions of conductor and suspect, Sam Karas.

"What has a conductor but not an orchestra?" Sam had the answer in a flash. "The Orient Express Train." To "What has an orchestra but no conductor?" again Sam trippingly replied, "The Monterey Bay Symphony." With this, train conductor Sam was declared "Karasmatic" and the spoofy whodunnit became an open-and-shut case.

Ron Weitzman, president of the Monterey Bay Symphony (which benefitted from the fund-raiser), immediately took care of his conductorless orchestra (for the moment at least), by presenting a baton to Maestro Haymo Taeuber, who will conduct the first concert of the coming season.

Karas had a busy eavning. He dashed in for his "Karasmatic" role after being honored by the Japanese-American Citizens League for his efforts of redress on behalf of the Japanese-Americans during WWII. Others honored were Rep. Leon Panetta, Sen. Henry Mello, Lou Haddad and Barbara Shipnuck (who was just back from a sister-city visit to Japan, and who also boarded the Orient Express later).

Chatting over course, after course, after course, of delicious cuisine prepared by owner/chef Kloczl, were Hadley and Connie Osborn, Robert and Jeanne Murray, Peterson Conway, Eugene and Audrey Schrader, Ben Lyon, Marc Del Piero, Lance McClair, Raymond and Betty Bergerac and some 120 other guests seated in three separate rooms.

Morley Brown and Edie Karas were co-chairs of the event, and the host committee consisted of Sally Griffin, Bert Saunders, Patsy Strand, Myles Williams, Ken White, June Duran, and Morgan Stock (off trekking through the for-real Europe), and Allen Funt (a non-attendee).

Models decked out in the latest fashions and testifying to help solve the mystery were Elaine Berman, Tina Del Piero, Doris Jones, Rachel Holz, Pat Miniaci, LaVonne Rilling, Glorietta Rowland, Elizabeth Sosic, Jean White, Rhonda Williams and June Wortman.

It was way past the witching hour when guests stepped off the Express d'Orient into the full-moonlit night. Another bonus — they were spared the bother of unpacking travel trunks.

THE MP BRANCH of American Association of University Women (AAUW) is an active and stimulating group of ladies who brought two male members into the group recently, Robert England and Russell Coile.

These members are into book reviews, antiques, gourmet cooking, hiking, networking and women's issues (pen power). They are involved also with the Reproduction Rights Coalition, Teen Parenting (ACT board), Old Monterey Preservation Society, International Relations, Women's History Month and Literacy Projects.

The final yearly meeting was a special luncheon at Gernot's lovely Victoria House in Pacific Grove. Outgoing president Marcia DeVoe presided one more time before turning the gavel over to Pamela Griffin, who steps into the leadership role in September.

Juliet Carter arranged the program, bringing in George Warren as guest speaker. George, of Pacific Grove, is the author of many children's books, including his multi-volume epic novel Children of The Lion.

His talk titled "Inside An Author" stressed the importance of "being yourself when you write." Re "the making of a writer" in his case, he has been an avid reader since the age of 4 and quoted writers from Plato to Goethe. He pointed out the direction currently taken by the publishing industry. At the moment, Mr. Warren is writing a mystery thriller.

Co-chairs for the AAUW luncheon were Karen Snow and Barbara Woolman. Other officers elected for 1989-90 are Peggy Hansen, Marjorie Troutman, Jan Maroot, Heidi Daunt, Barbara Marelius, Pat McMillan and Carol Hubbard.

THE DELIGHTFUL DAVIS Factor photo of Maestro Sandor Salgo in top hat (actually I was told it was a champagne bucket), graced the invitations to the Volunteers' Party held in the Pebble home of the Carmel Bach Festival board president Anne Scoville.

In the photo the Maestro is smiling a "thank-you" as he extends an Uncle Sam-style hand for the Bach Festival "needs you appeal."

Isabel Crossen, president of the Bach Associates, welcomed

SEATED AT the grand piano at the Monterey Bay Symphony fund-raiser were Dr. and Mrs. Fred Sadler, who were joined by Dr. Walter Holz and Max Picard.

GEORGE KLOCZL and Kathleen Fitzgerald, owners of Express d'Orient restaurant in The Crossroads shopping center, graciously donated dinner for the Monterey Bay Symphony fund-raiser.

PATRICIA SANDSTRUM (left, in a jacket she must have bought in Turkey when she hopped off the Orient Express), with Elaine Berman and Richard Rosenthal.

HOST COMMITTEE members for the Orient Express dinner for the Monterey Bay Symphony, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Sweet, stood by the entry decorations with co-chairwoman Edie Karas.

LANCE MCCLAIR (left), mayor of Seaside, and Supervisor Marc Del Piero chatted with Edith Alt during the reception for the Orient Express fund-raiser.

PROUD FATHER Haymo Taeuber, gave daughter Barbara a hug during the Orient Express fund-raiser. Barbara leaves soon on a cross-country bike ride to raise money for the American Lung Association.

MAESTRO HAYMO Taeuber examined the baton presented to him by Ron Weitzman for the first concert of the coming season for the Monterey Bay Symphony.

FUTURITES. ALTHOUGH THE reception will be held in July, the Francoise Gilot Exhibit: The Early Years 1942-62" opens at the MP Museum of Art May 27. It covers: The War Years, The Picasso Years and the Years in Paris/London. As you remember, Ms. Gilot had two children with Picasso. One of them, Paloma, visited the peninsula several years ago. Mrs. Gilot has been wed to Dr. Jonas Salk for 19 years. In July she will be guest speaker at the museum's annual meeting.

EAT, DRINK, AND BE BURIED.
Go ahead. Live it up while you can. Eat anything and everything you want, from those processed meats to fatty dairy products to that extra measure of salt. But do it soon. Because poor eating habits can lead to high blood cholesterol, which can result in clogged arteries, a damaged heart, and an early death. The American Heart Association urges you to eat sensibly. Avoid food high in fat, salt and cholesterol. Avoid eating too much. It could keep you from an early grave and let you live it up a little longer.

Ties the knot

SCOTT TAYLOR Wilsdon and Julie Elizabeth Barrett of San Francisco were married on Saturday, May 13 at Kiana Lodge in Poulsbo, Wash. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Miles Barrett of Spokane, Wash. She is a graduate of the University of Washington, and has just received her degree from Hastings College of Law in San Francisco. Wilsdon is the son of Jean Brenner and Richard Wilsdon, both of Carmel, and the brother of Alex Wilsdon of Cupertino, Diane Wilsdon-Fawcett of Claremont, and Michael Brenner of Chicago. He grew up in Carmel and was graduated from Carmel High School in 1978. An honor student at Stanford University, he received his degree in 1982. He was on Rep. Leon Panetta's staff in Washington D.C. for two years before coming back to work for the City of Monterey. Later, while attending Hastings College of Law, he was a clerk for California Supreme Court Justice Allen Broussard. He received his law degree in June of 1988 and has been practicing with a San Francisco firm this last year. In Seattle he will clerk for Federal Court Judge Thomas Zilly. For her wedding, Barrett will be attended by her sister, Margaret Barrett, and Wilsdon will have his brother, Alex, as his best man. After a wedding trip to Ecuador, the couple will reside in Seattle.

WELLNESS MARATHON SET FOR MAY 27

Dr. Joel Shain, a Monterey chiropractor, will treat as many people in one day for a flat fee of $10 for any of his normal health care services (office visit, X-rays, treatments, new patient exams, etc.), Saturday, May 27 to raise funds for The Family Resource Center to help battered and/or sexually abused children on the Monterey Peninsula.

Shain will attempt to service 100 people that day and generate $3,000 for child abuse services.

"We will be helping those of our children who have been traumatized to overcome their psychological and physical problems," Shain said. "And, at the same time, each participant will receive valuable, personal health care that will allow them to enjoy their lives even more."

Shain's office is located at 335 El Dorado St. in Monterey. To make an appointment for May 27 call 646-0555.

Biking for a cause

BARBARA TAEUBER is the only participant from Monterey County in the third annual TransAmerica Bicycle Trek, a fund-raiser for the American Lung Association. So far Taeuber has collected $4,000 for her goal of $5,000 before she takes off on her trip June 2 (the trek begins in Seattle June 5). Progress reports will be aired live on KTOM FM-100.7 (AM 1380), as she makes her way to Atlantic City, N.J., which trekkers are expected to reach July 21. To make a pledge and put Taeuber on her wheels with her goal reached, please call 375-2545 by June 2. More than 400 volunteers from across the country hope to raise $2.5 million for ALA programs.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES SCHEDULED

A parade followed by Memorial Day services will be conducted in honor of Carmel's deceased servicemen on Tuesday, May 30 by American Legion Post 512 and the Fort Ord Army Band.

The parade will start at 10:30 a.m. at Monte Verde and Ocean, proceeding up Ocean Avenue to Devendorf Park with a Carmel Police Department escort.

At 11 a.m., Al Chapin, post commander, will lead the services. Lt. Col. Hutchinson from the 2nd Brigade 7th Infantry Division (Light) will give the eulogy extolling those gallant men and women who paid the ultimate price for our freedom. Command chaplain Edward Joyce will offer prayers. Jacqueline Rosett Dickman of Carmel will sing the national anthem. The 7th Infantry Division (Light) will provide the music, rifle salute, and a bugler playing taps.

Wreaths and flowers will be placed on the World War I Monument at San Carlos and Ocean as well as at the memorial tablets listing World War II, Korean and Vietnam war dead at the park.

Refreshments and lunch will be provided at the American Legion Hall at Eighth and Dolores for participants in the parade and services following the ceremonies.

SCENICS AND ROMANTICS

Bright daylight may be fine for most picture taking, but for beautiful landscape photographs that look like paintings, try shooting at either end of the day.

Just after sunup, the light is wonderfully golden. Choose a scene with long shadows and shoot with the sun to the side so that highlights reflect the early sunlight. Try a backlit scene, too, opening up a stop or two to see what's in the shadows.

Late afternoon shoots can start long before the sun goes down in the west and continue through dusk. Around sunset, try a shot or two toward the east, to capture colorful tints in the skyline and landscape from the setting sun.

For something different, you might try using high-speed film for interesting grain and contrast. The extra speed may let you shoot later into the evening without a tripod.

For more photo tips, see the pros at Blue Ribbon Photo. We can develop your film into beautiful lustre-finish prints in less than 1 hour. We also have a great selection of everything photographic you'll need for the Memorial Day weekend.

CAPTAIN COOPER CARNIVAL A BIG SUCCESS

The Captain Cooper School Carnival, held on May 13th was a huge success. The school grossed more than $9,000, the largest amount ever in the history of the carnival. Monies will be used by the parents club to buy needed supplies, provide for field trips, and to finance the future multi-purpose room.

"Many thanks to all of the students, staff, parents, and community members who helped to make the carnival such a success," said Sharen Carey. "We would like to extend our

with...

Alice S. March, Ph.D. • Robert March, MFCC

Going together, living together, being married
does not automatically make you a couple.
A couple is two people who can relate in a way to bring about synergy.
Couples come to us to improve their relationship.
To improve means change.
You alone can change, but you cannot change alone.
We can help you become agents of change.
We can help discover and clarify the rules
governing your couple behavior.
We can help you find the delicate balance of being an individual,
while sharing a loving relationship.

COMMODORE SLOAT CHAPTER NSDAR HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Commodore Sloat Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was held Tuesday, May 16 at the Carmel Valley Inn. At the meeting, elections and installation of new officers for the 1989-1991 term were held. In addition, the outgoing officers and committee chairman gave their annual reports.

Newly installed officers are: Regent — Alida Lehman; First Vice Regent — Carol Todd; Second Vice Regent — Marion Flaherty; Chaplain — Frances Bly; Recording Secretary — Jame Holmes; Corresponding Secretary — Elizabeth Haviside; Treasurer — Ruth Tully; Registrar — Ferne Yarnell; Historian — Ann Linder; Librarian — Clarice Kahr.

In other business, Mary Coates, outgoing regent, reported on her recent trip to attend DAR Continental Congress in Washington D.C. Newly elected Regent Alida Lehman introduced herself and discussed some of her programs for the new term.

CARMEL HIGH SOCCER PLAYERS SCORE

Kristie Zook, Kirsten Woolley, and Robyn Millan, sophomores at Carmel High School, were instrumental in leading their Under-19 girls soccer team to the championship of the Santa Clara Valley Spring League soccer tournament in Sunnyvale on Sunday, May 21.

The girls are starters for the Cypress Rowdies, a select team composed of girls from all over the peninsula. After tying and losing games on Saturday, the Rowdies had to come from behind to win two hard fought matches with the Los Gatos Jaguars and the Sunnyvale Roadrunners on Sunday.

As defenders for the Rowdies, Kirsten and Kristie shut down their opponents offense, limiting them to one goal in the games on Sunday. Robyn coordinated the Rowdies attack from her positions as forward and midfielder; she set up the winning goal in the first game.

All three girls are honor students, band members, and participate in other sports at the high school. Kristie was on the varsity basketball team, and Robyn and Kirsten played on the boys JV soccer team this past winter. Kirsten is also on the swimming team. Last year Kristie, Kirsten, and Robyn were on the high school track team.

BUCKLIN-BARTER ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT

Janice Elaine Bucklin and Eric Gregory Barter have announced their engagement and upcoming wedding to be held in May at La Playa Hotel in Carmel.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mrs. Wendy Bucklin and the late Cmdr. Gerald Bucklin and the groom-to-be is the son of Harriet Holman Barter and the late Arthur William Barter Jr. of the Monterey Peninsula and is the grandson of the founders of Holman's Department Store, where he received his merchandizing training. The couple are currently working at Gottschalks chain store in Fresno. The couple will spend their homeymoon in Tahiti.

NEW EASTWOOD FILM STARS IN FUND-RAISER

Clint Eastwood's latest film Pink Cadillac will get a premiere screening at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 25 at Lighthouse Cinemas in Pacific Grove in a benefit for Alzheimer's Association of Monterey County and the Family Service Agency.

The screening will be preceded at 7 by a champagne and hors d'oeuvres reception. Tickets are $20 per person in advance, $25 at the door.

Eastwood stars in the film as Tommy Nowak, a "skip-tracer" or bounty hunter working out of Sacramento, who prefers a sly approach to outsmarting and apprehending bail jumpers rather than the confrontive approach. Nowak is sent to retrieve one Lou Ann McGuinn (Bernadette Peters),

OBITUARIES

Barbara Kynaston

A memorial service took place May 13 at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel, for Barbara Mary Kynaston, long-time secretary to the late Samuel F.B. Morse, who died May 10 at her Carmel residence. She was 85.

Born Sept. 15, 1903 in Victoria, B.C., she had been a Carmel resident for most of her life.

She received nursing training at Stanford University Hospital, and was a captain in the Army Nurse Corps during World War II, serving in England.

She was personal secretary to Morse for 35 years. She was superintendent of the School of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Carmel, and was the first woman to serve on the Vestry, during which time she was junior warden.

She was secretary of the Alcoholism Council, and was an avid gardener.

Survivors include her sister, Nancy Kynaston of Carmel; and three cousins, Kelly Steele, H. Chandler Steele, and Becky Steele, all of Carmel.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to All Saints' Episcopal Church.

Elizabeth C. Griffin

A mass was celebrated April 28 at Our Lady of Fatima Church in Modesto, for Elizabeth Campion Griffin, who died April 25 at Memorial Hospital in Modesto. She was 48.

Born Feb. 27, 1941 in San Francisco, Mrs. Griffin was a frequent visitor and part-time resident of Pebble Beach. She had been a resident of Modesto for 24 years.

She received her bachelor's degree in history from the University of California at Berkeley in 1962. She was a mamber of Kappa Kappa Sorority and Torch and Shield.

She was the Stanislaus County Chairwoman of Guide Dogs for the Blind and a member of the 1979-80 Stanislaus County Grand Jury.

Survivors include her parents, Dr. and Mrs. George Campion of Carmel Valley; her husband, Judge John Griffin Jr. of Modesto; a son, John of Tucson, Ariz.; two daughters, Molly of San Francisco and Kate of Modesto; three sisters, Mary Connolly of Mexico City, Tory Raggett of Carmel and Anne Crisan of Pebble Beach; and a grandmother, Elizabeth Alward of Carmel.

Further services were pending. Franklin and Downs Mortuary in Modesto was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Central Catholic High School Foundation in Modesto or to the donor's favorite charity.

Marcia B. Brown

A memorial service and cremation took place for Marcia B. Brown of Carmel, who died May 12 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. She was 81.

Born Aug. 18, 1907 in St. Paul, Minn., she was descended from a pioneer Montana family. She attended Ossining-on-the-Hudson in New York, the University of Montana and the University of Washington.

She moved to Carmel in 1961 with her late husband Henry, who died in 1963.

An avid birder and bridge player and instructor, Mrs. Brown was also a homemaker and community volunteer, serving on the boards of numerous service and charitable organizations, including the American Heart Association, which awarded her its Bronze Medal for long and outstanding service.

She was also a member of the Junior League of Monterey County, and also belonged to Kappa Alpha Thera sorority, the American Audubon Society, the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, the Monterey County SPCA Auxiliary, Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula Auxiliary, Friends of the Sea Otter, Carmel Woman's Club, Carmel Foundation and the Republican Woman's Club, also the Montana Historical Society.

In addition she was a supporter of the Salvation Army, the Alliance on Aging, Meals on Wheels, Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, the United Way and the Herald's annual Operation Christmas Cheer.

Survivors include a son, Dr. Whitney Brown of Carmel; a daughter, Morley Brown of Carmel; a sister, Clara Pelletier of LaJolla; a nephew and a niece.

Instead of memorial contributions, the family suggests that those who wish to honor Mrs. Brown do a kindness anonymously for someone less fortunate.

John M. Hutzel

Graveside services took place May 11 at Forest Hill Cemetary in Ann Arbor, Mich., for John M. Hutzel, a retired professor, who died May 6 at Rogue Valley Manor in Medford, Ore. He was 72.

Born July 2, 1916 in Benton Harbor, Mich., Mr. Hutzel had lived in Pebble Beach from 1981 to 1987. He graduated from the University of Michigan and received his master's and doctoral degress from Ohio State University.

He was a naval officer in World War II assigned to the 4th Marine Division. Following the war, he was the associate administrative secretary for the Advancement of Science in Washington, D.C. He held branch and division chief positions with the U.S. Army Joint Operations Group from 1949 to 1954.

He joined the Stanford Research Institute in 1965 as West Coast Administrator for the Political/Policy Studies Group, was a professor of international business and chairman of the management department at San Jose State University, and director of the San Jose State University Research Foundation.

Mr. Hutzel was a member of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel.

Survivors include his wife, Evalyn of Medford, Ore.; two daughters, Cynthia Bryant of San Jose and Joy Nathan of Arlington, Va.

Muehlig Funeral Home in Ann Arbor was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the School of Business, San Jose State University.

SENIOR LINE

By Bill Schneider

No quick remedy

Q. YOU'VE frequently commented on the Catastrophic Coverage Act, mostly negative, but you haven't talked about remedies. Is there any action being take to correct the alleged inequities in the law?

MA, King City

A. THE last time I counted, 13 separate pieces of legislation had been introduced in Congress aimed at either reform or repeal of the Medicare Catastrophic law.

In my opinion, one of the better bills introduced is S.335 by Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.). McCain's Catastrophic Coverage Revision Act of 1989 would retain the $4 Part B catastrophic premium which became effective Jan. 1, and would not affect the expanded hospital, hospice, and skilled nursing home coverage which took effect the first of this year. In addition it would allow the important and long-sought provisions to prevent spousal impoverishment to become effective later this year as originally scheduled. However all benefits scheduled to take effect after 1989, and the imposition of the catastrophic surtax would be delayed for one year while Congress reviews the new law. California Sen. Pete Wilson is one of the early sponsors of the McCain bill.

I believe S-335 represents a sensible approach for addressing the catastrophic controversy. The commission approach, in some of the other bills, only requires more time, more money, and a final report that still has to be reviewed and adopted by Congress. Only Congress has the power to change or reform the catastrophic act, so why not take public's complaints and concerns directly to the Congress for hearing.

Q. I wanted to move to Santa Cruz County to be near my daughter and her family. I planned to sell my home here and buy a townhouse for about the same price I expect to get for my home here. A friend tells me that my property taxes will increase greatly because my new home will be assessed at the purchase price. Isn't there some law that protects senior citizens in this situation?

MR, Monterey

A. I believe you are referring to Proposition 90 on the November 1988 ballot. This proposition was an attempt to expand Proposition 60, from a prior election, which created an exemption to the general rule of reassessment when property is sold by those over age 55. However, Proposition 90 left it to the individual counties to decide whether to participate, and both Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties have formally rejected participation.

You can transfer the assessed value of your home within any county in California but when last I heard, only Kern, Orange, San Diego and San Mateo counties had adopted ordinances allowing the transfer of the current assessed value from outside into their county.

Seniors program needs participants

Carmel Police Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares about their welfare.

Under the program, senior volunteers call participants of the program by telephone from the Carmel Police Department. If for some reason the recipient doesn't answer the phone, the volunteer alerts the police dispatcher and a patrol unit is sent to check on the participant's welfare. To be effective, calls are made at about the same time every day, Dampier said, but the seniors aren't restricted to their homes. If they plan to be gone, they merely notify the police department in advance.

In addition to the daily phone calls, home visitations, tea parties, and luncheons are also scheduled to "further enhance and improve the quality of our contacts" with those who are shut-ins or at-risk, Dampier said.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Dream State

from Carmel Pine Cone
March 13, 1980

Our club was founded when Rotary was 45 years old—it is now 75 and both International Rotary and Carmel Rotary must have been doing many things right or they both would have ceased to exist years ago.

O Lord, help us to continue to walk or even to run on the road of service to others above self. The Soviets are past masters in the art of attack as the best form of defense and in the face of American criticism of the bloody invasion of Afghanistan they have launched a barrage of criticism.

Tomas Constantinovich Kolesnickenko of Pravda wrote his impression of the California Dream: "California has lost its glow as a guiding star. She leads America in suicide, mental illness, divorce, alcoholism, homosexuality, narcotics addiction and all forms of crime and violence. It has the world's largest bank and the most bankruptcies. It has the highest living standards for the bourgeois and the lowest for the Mexican population. The cult of individual liberty has spawned the KKK, the John Birch Society and the American Nazi Party. California is the classic example of the moral and social decadence of the capitalistic society. I want no part of it."

I wonder how many of his readers would take California with all her faults? However, many of Kolesnickenko's charges are true and it is our task to clean up our Dream State. Since all reform has to start somewhere let it start with us.

Thanks Ivan Ivanovitch for telling us it's time for spring cleaning and Nicklaiavich Tvanich doesn't need to tell us that we need a big broom.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Prescription mususe by older Americans is a serious, widespread problem, according to the National Council on Patient Information and Education (NCPIE). It reports that taking prescriptions incorrectly is the cause of almost 25 percent of hospitalizations of older people. NCPIE advises individuals to get answers to these questions about any prescription: How and when do I take it, and for how long? What foods, drinks, other medicines or activities should I avoid while taking this drug? Are there any side effects, and what do I do if they occur?

Festival celebrates incredible, edible squid

IT MAY not be much to look at, but it's popular and tasty enough to draw thousands to a one-of-a-kind event for the past five years: The Great Monterey Squid Festival.

The sixth annual event, which will be held 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, May 27 and 28 at the Monterey Fairgrounds, features squid — or calamari — cooked in every imaginable way as well as featured in entertaining and educational displays. The event features 28 food booths, 10 beverage booths; 25 arts and crafts booths; three outdoor stages with such top-notch acts as Mary Wells (My Guy), the Fabulous Drifters, and Daddy-O; an indoor stage featuring children's entertainment; strolling musicians, clowns, mimes, jugglers; a recipe contest, and demonstrations of how to clean and prepare squid.

"For those with a taste for history, as well as seafood, the Great Monterey Squid Festival is both a tribute to the commercial fishing industry of the Monterey Bay and a succulent celebration of the star of the sea, the incredible, edible squid," opined the San Francisco Examiner.

The live entertainment features everything from Country & Western to jazz to rock to mariachi music: Mary Wells, one of the stars of '60s Motown sound, headlines a 3:45 p.m. Saturday show on the Garden Stage, while the Fabulous Drifters, famous for hits such as On Broadway and Under the Boardwalk, entertain Sunday at the same time and same place.

'...a succulent celebration of the star of the sea, the incredible, edible squid.'

Other acts include Jack Stock and the Abalone Stompers, Mariachi Mixtlan, Broadway Blues Band, local rockers Young Presidents and Lovers and Strangers, Home Fire, Fort Ord Band, Strictly Country, Shanachie, City Lights and many more.

In addition to live entertainment the festival will also have live squid displays, "touch tanks," and other displays sponsored by the Monterey Bay Aquarium, Hopkins Marine Station and Moss Landing Marine Lab, among others.

The event is a fund-raiser for the Monterey Kiwanis Club, with proceeds to benefit local charities, and to support Central Coast's commercial fishing industry.

Admission is $4 for adults, $2 for children 6-12, and free for children 5 and under.

For more information call 649-6547.

THE FABULOUS Drifters, famous for hits such as On Broadway and Under the Boardwalk, entertain Sunday, May 28.

MARY WELLS, a star for Motown who hit it big in the mid-'60s with My Guy, headlines a show at 3:45 p.m. Saturday, May 27 on the Garden Stage at the Great Monterey Squid Festival scheduled for 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. May 27-28 at Monterey Fairgrounds.

ARTS & LEISURE

'Garden of Lies' author to sign books at May 26 autograph party

EILEEN GOUDGE, author of Garden of Lies, will be on hand to autograph copies of her new novel at 5:30 p.m. Friday, May 26 at Blake's Bookshop in The Crossroads shopping center. (Jerry Bauer photo.)

EILEEN GOUDGE, author of Garden of Lies, soon to be a four-hour ABC mini-series, will autograph copies of the book at an autograph party at 5:30 p.m. Friday, May 26 at Blake's Bookshop at The Crossroads shopping center, Highway 1 and Rio Road in Carmel.

Garden of Lies tells the story of wealthy Sylvie Rosenthal, who gives birth to a baby girl, Rose, in 1943 to her illicit lover Nikos. When a fire rages through the hospital Sylvie takes the opportunity to switch babies with a dead woman, leaving her own daughter to be cared for by strangers.

The book follows the lives of Rose, who grows up in poverty and strife, and Rachel, who grows up in priveleged environment, but who both become ambitious, successful women, and the woman who is haunted by her past and her relationship with the two women.

Goudge, has followed in the footsteps of a relative, novelist Elizabeth Goudge, whose Green Dolphin Street was made into a film.

Eileen Goudge's novel, which has been compared to the works of Barbara Taylor Bradford and Rosamunde Pilcher, has already been a Book-of-the-Month Club feature and has been published in 11 countries by Viking.

Complimentary wine and hors d'ouevres will be served; the public is invited to attend the event.

For more information contact Blake's Bookshop at 626-1010.

AMY TAN, author of The Joy Luck Club will be on hand to autograph copies of her new novel from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, May 27 at Books Inc. on Ocean Avenue near Mission in Carmel.

'Joy Luck Club' author to appear

AMY TAN, author of The Joy Luck Club will autograph copies of her new novel from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, May 27 at Books Inc., Ocean Avenue near Mission in Carmel.

Four Chinese women, bound by the sorrows of their past and their love and envy for one another, begin meeting regularly in 1949 in their adopted city of San Francisco. Each week they play mah jong, eat homemade dim sum and "say" stories about themselves, their ancestors and their children. They name their group The Joy Luck Club.

Oakland-born Tan's first work of fiction intertwines the tale of these four women — and their modern Chinese daughters — juxtaposing the values and expectations of two generations, two continents, and two cultures.

The Joy Luck Club is a Book-of-the-Month Club and Quality Paperback Book Club featured alternate selection.

For more information please call Books Inc. at 625-2550.

Michael Brangoccio's collages highlights 'new' gallery opening

MICHAEL BRANGOCCIO'S canvases and collaged works on paper will be exhibited in a solo show at Christopher Grimes Gallery (formerly Site 311), opening with a reception 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 26 at the gallery located on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh in Carmel.

(After more than 10 years in Pacific Grove, Site 311 has moved to Carmel and changed its name to the Christopher Grimes Gallery.)

Brangoccio's technique of painting and collage becomes, in Brangoccio's words: "...cracking and tearing or synthesis and antithesis...nature, life and art in execution and theory...a steady current of building up and tearing down..."

The art of collage, as first known, was practiced by 12th century Japanese calligraphers, whose use of copied poems pasted on handmade papers and embellished with irregularly shaped, delicately tinted forms clearly showed the regard for paper as a sacred ceremonial material.

Brangoccio's works, especially those executed on paper, give credit to this graceful birth in the elegance of forms and the frequently used calligraphy of calligraphic shapes. Yet, the freedom and spontaneity of the often-torn edge of applied form alludes to the leitmotif in the decisive, spare work of Robert Motherwell, who justly titled one 1957 work "The Tearingness of Collage."

Brangoccio's canvases, while often employing collage or using paper to build surface, have a density of background revealing a complexity of layers that Brangoccio relates to imagery of decaying alleys, residential and commercial buildings, billboards and fences. Yet, for this complexity of surface, his compositions show cleanly controlled strength — an elegant spareness.

Brangoccio's art is part of a perpetual voyage of self-discovery. He believes that "all things seek their own levels in change: what I am exploring in my art is the beauty and calm in the acceptance of change."

The exhibit continues through July 15. For more information call the gallery at 624-8454.

MICHAEL BRANGOCCIO'S "The Subterraneans II" acrylic and mixed media on canvas will be one of the works on display at Christopher Grimes Gallery (formerly Site 311), in Carmel, opening with a reception from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 26.

Gilot show opens at MPMA

SELECTIONS FROM a 45-year retrospective exhibition of the paintings of Francoise Gilot will open in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Asian Gallery Saturday, May 27.

"Francoise Gilot: The Early Years — The First Three Periods 1942-1962," includes the War Years, which covers her early paintings from 1942-1946: the Picasso Years from 1946-1954: and the years in Paris and London from 1955-1962. The complete exhibition first premiered at the Picasso Museum in Antibes in 1988.

Gilot enjoys an international reputation as a painter whose works are in museums and private collections in Europe, America and Asia. She has lectured at universities throughout the U.S. and is the art editor of Virginia Woolf Quarterly.

She shared Picasso's life for a decade and had two of his four children. She has been married to Dr. Jonas Salk, developer of the polio vaccine and founding director of the Salk Institute. She will also be the guest sspeaker at the museum's annual meeting in July.

The exhibit continues through Aug. 27. Her works are made available courtesy Riggs Galleries, Inc. of La Jolla and by the artist.

For more information call the museum at 372-5477.

Ramon Kelley show opens at Zantman

Zantman Art Galleries will present their second one-man show of the paintings of Ramon Kelley opening May 24 and continuing through June 6 at the gallery, Sixth Avenue in Carmel.

Kelley's professional art career started after graduating from the Colorado Institute of Art. he has built a national reputation in a variety of media: oil, acrylic, watercolor, charcoal, conte crayon, pastel and sculpture.

In 1985 the Pastel Society of America designated Kelley as a Master Pastelist and in 1986 he was elected to the Pastel Hall of Fame.

For information on the show please call 624-8314.

Dear Friends,

A major hub of Monterey County's community and cultural activities is the Sunset Center Complex in Carmel, consisting of the Sunset Community and Cultural Center, the Forest Theater, and the Scout House. Many peninsulans attend performances here, use the multi-faceted facilities, and appreciate how much the Complex contributes to this unique area.

We invite you to become a member of the Friends of Sunset Foundation, a newly formed non-profit organization being established to provide support for the Complex, owned and maintained by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. There are non tax-supported projects which can be undertaken to enhance operations and enrich our community. These projects will be determined by the membership.

The Friends of Sunset Foundation is a (pending) tax exempt organization. A board of trustees will be elected and the by-laws will be voted upon at the first annual meeting of those who have been members 30 days preceding the annual meeting. Though totally independent, the Friends will be working with the City, the Community and Cultural Commission, and other organizations.

Please take a moment now to fill out the attached form and mail it, together with your check, in the enclosed envelope. As this is a new venture, your indication of willingness to take advantage of unique volunteer opportunities is vital to success.

The annual meeting of members is scheduled for June when specific projects will be discussed. You are encouraged to attend all meetings as announced in the Carmel Pine Cone. We urge your support in keeping this jewel of peninsula activities in the forefront of our community.

Sincerely,

Jean White

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Jazz conclave

TOYOTA WILL underwrite a conclave in Pebble Beach this summer—including a private and major jazz bash—to unveil its first luxury model for the people charged with selling that item. Spin-off public bookings of the same musicians were in the works today.

This column learned that the new Lexus auto will be shown to 700 Toyota executives and dealers during their get-together July 30-31 and Aug. 1. Place: The Inn at Spanish Bay.

Revealing Toyota's plans was Connie Booth, Carmel resident and partner in the Kelly/Booth Talent Agency of Monterey. Her assignment—getting name players for the July 30 jazz program—put her on the ground floor as far as general planning went.

"This's the most fun thing I've done since becoming an agent," Connie said. "Now I'm working to book some of these artists into public venues while they're in the area. I'll let your jazz column know as soon as agreements come through."

Connie said these jazz headliners will work the date: John Handy and Class (three young ladies who play electric violins and sing), Stanley Jordan, Buddy Montgomery Quartet, Bobby Hutcherson working with Cedar Walton and Harold Land alongside Billy Higgins, Smith Dobson, selected locals.

"This (gathering) will be of economic significance," Connie said. "Not all the visitors will stay at Spanish Bay. Some have reservations at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort and the Sheraton. And they'll be spending money throughout the area."

She said four of the luxury cars would be displayed at Spanish Bay—and that demonstration trials would occur over the Laguna Seca course.

THE NON-PROFIT Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz invites you to attend its 14th annual birthday party on Sunday afternoon (5/28) from 1 till 5 o'clock at San Lorenzo Park over there.

The free event centers around a concert at Duck Island Theater. Signed up: jazz guitarist Alex Candelaria's group with pianist Graham Connah, the New Age unit called Pangea (Gary Regina featured on reeds and wind synthesizer), delightful jazz vocalist Ann Whittington plus backup crew.

This concert's made possible (in part), by a birthday grant from Santa Cruz City Arts Commission. Kuumbwa Director Tim Jackson: "We'll have the new T-shirts available—and good food prepared by volunteers. We hope the Monterey Peninsula jazz community will join this fun as we say thanks for supporting our weekly programs."

Meanwhile, Kuumbwa Jazz Institute plans its first semester of jazz for intermediate and advanced students. It's under the direction of vibist and composer Rob Lautz. He says: "Past students wanted an advanced version of the class. I think it also will attract players who have not taken the class because earlier sessions were too basic or simple for them. The first five weeks we'll play three tunes a night with everyone getting as much solo time as possible. The last three weeks we'll rehearse arrangements of some of those tunes for a free public Kuumbwa-sponsored concert by participants."

So. The college-level Summer Jazz Performance Workshop starts Wednesday night (5/31) and will meet from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Aug. 2. All at Kuumbwa Center, 320-2 Cedar St. The fee's $75, Rob notes, "and tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law."

Students must be proficient with their instruments, sight reading, jazz harmony, improvisation. For this reason, auditions will be held on May 31 at 7:30 p.m. Piano, trap drum set and charts will be available. Enrollment's limited; registration needs to occur at Kuumbwa.

AT THE Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club—The Excursion (5/25), Terry Hanck and the Soul Rockers (holiday run of 5/26-28), Duo Du Jour (5/29), Jack and Ed Show (5/30), The New Group (5/31). Info: 649-4234.

The same room's booker—Teri Waros—brought in San Francisco Bay Area reedman Harvey Wainapel for two nights of refreshing tunes. With John Donaldson at the piano, Stan Poplin playing melodic bass, subtle brush drummer Ken Wolleson, Harvey broke out a band book featuring attractive originals and seldom-heard things by strong jazz writers. Represented therein: Duke Pearson, Walter Booker (this observer's favorite bassist), late Brazilian superstar Elis Regina, Joe Henderson, Tommy Turrentine, Fats Navarro, Charles Lloyd, Gigi Gryce, Kenny Dorham, Bobby Hutcherson, Tom Harrell, others.

"About 80 percent of the book is transcriptions I've done from records," Harvey said between sets. "I listen a lot and transcribe what I like especially well—something, for instance, that may've been heard by a few thousand people after it was recorded by Blue Note. (Pianist) Mark Levine gave me some of his transcriptions—another 10 percent. My own writing makes up the final 10 percent."

Usually enjoyed on alto round here, Wainapel played his tenor quite a bit. This work was both warm and notable for its clarity. Harvey's underlying news bulletin: romanticists don't have to be fatheads. His ballads recalled ways in which Brew Moore swung so prettily on downtempo titles.

There seems no end to John Donaldson's lyric inventiveness. Saxist John Cortes was in the audience and told a story. When superb reedman Gary Foster visited here from Los Angeles several months ago, Foster heard Donaldson play some tunes. And Gary then called John Donaldson "the idea guy."

REMINDER. THIS year's Paul Masson Summer Series kicks off next Thursday (6/1) at that beautiful mountain winery in the Saratoga hills. Ray Charles and Betty Carter will perform through June 4.

Also among the bookings for June: Ella Fitzgerald (6/9-11), Miles Davis (6/17-18), Earl Klugh (6/22-23), John McLaughlin and Al Dimeola Trio (6/24-25).

The series lasts nearly till September's end. Ticketmaster. Questions will be fielded (weekdays only) by staffers at the winery—1-741-5181.

Each year a single charity receives net profits from the 100-show series. For 1989: Northern California Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

NOTEBOOK CHUNKS:

• Bandstand brilliance offers no extra protection. Dirty needles put AIDS as well as drugs into the body of trumpeter Woody Shaw. His eyesight had been failing for years. In February, he fell downstairs onto New York subway tracks and his left arm was severed. Woody has died at Bellevue Hospital. Age 44. Kidney failure. Initial poison: bitterness over the inability to make a decent living even when his tremendous ability was at its height. It's the same old non-culture of acquisitiveness and disregard that still breaks jazzmakers' hearts.

Max Gordon, who ran the Village Vanguard for more than half a century, has died in New York. Age 86. He was that rarity of rarities: jazz club owner beloved by the artists working for him.

• Aptos pianist Smith Dobson's working with guitarist Joshua Breakstone at Kimball's in San Francisco (5/25-27). Bassist Larry Grenadier and drummer Eddie Marshall complete the group. At Kimball's East (Emeryville)—Tito Puente (5/30-6/3).

• Yoshi's on the Oakland-Berkeley line announces that Joe Williams will play there next month (6/13-18).

• You can check out extraordinary guitarist Jeff Linsky at Monterey Plaza Hotel on Friday and Saturday nights.

• Jimmy's American Place (Carmel Rancho Center) still has jazz flutist Kenny Stahl fronting Tuesday night jams.

• On Friday evening (5/26) at Big Sur's River Inn— pianist Bob Phillips and friends. Papa Jake and those Abalone Stompers the following Sunday.

• It's now $4 per at the door for Monterey Jazz Orchestra at Mission Ranch Barn. Monday nights (8-11). Bar open one hour earlier.

• UC/Santa Cruz offers various units in concert Friday night (5/26) at Performing Arts Hall. Blues, bop, big band. Costs $5 general or $2 for students and seniors.

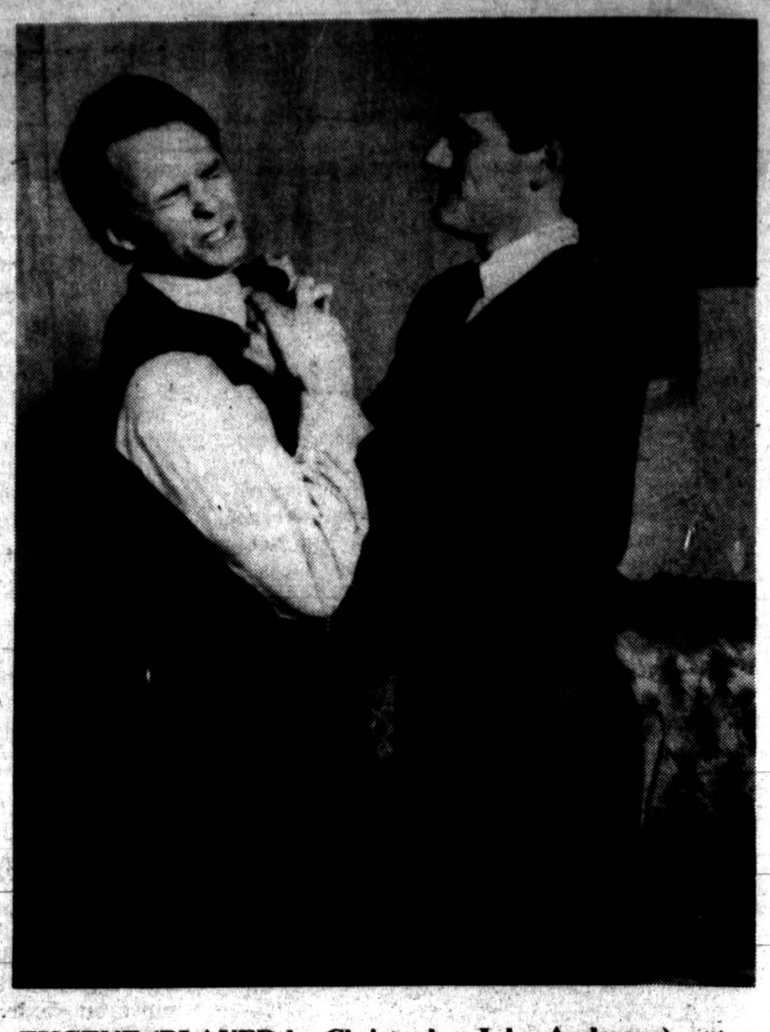
THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis



EUGENE (PLAYED by Christopher John Anderson), gets a stern talking-to from his older brother Stanley (Henry Guevara), in this scene from Neil Simon's comedy Brighton Beach Memoirs, which continues through June 4 at Monterey Peninsula College Theater.

Coming of age in Brooklyn

NEIL SIMON'S Brighton Beach Memoirs opened last week on the MPC Main Stage. Most agree that this is one of Simon's most mature works in that he deals with a humanistic premise rather than a "comedic situation" that characterizes most of his plays. Here he allows the humor to unfold in a more natural theatrical way than is his usual tendency.

The setting consists of two families living under one roof during the Depression, giving us a rich field for dramatic opportunity. Widowed Blanche and her two daughters Nora and Laurie have moved in with Jack and Kate and their two sons Stanley and Eugene. The Depression has made Blanche dependent on her sister and the trouble is it's becoming too comfortable a situation for her. Jack and Kate have been bearing up nobly but cracks are beginning to appear in the facade.

Nora, Blanche's older daughter, probing for independence, also provides a lust interest for the two boys. Laurie, the younger daughter, is making a career out of a cardiac dysrhythmia and doesn't lift anything but her sarcastic tongue. The older boy Stanley is a hapless creature, getting in trouble at work and outside, but he does provide a primitive source of badly needed sex education for Eugene.

Eugene is the star. He's at that age where he still dreams of becoming a baseball star but is slowly realizing that his developing language skills may force him to become a writer. His droll comments on his parents' and cousins' foibles provide much of the comic element of the play. The rest is provided by the exquisitely romanticized and desperately felt aspects of puberty that he is experiencing. He's a very horny young man.

There is a subplot concerning Blanche's contact with Mr. Murphy, an Irish neighbor. Kate says "Stay on your own side of the street, that's what gutters are for." This raises a minor episode of ethnic discomfort but is also attractive because it provides Blanche with a possible alternative to her present submission. However, it doesn't work out. The real climax is more natural; unexpected because it is so plausible.

The sisters Kate and Blanche are quite different and create a natural tension that would be sufficiently dramatic even if they didn't live under the same roof. Teresa del Piero plays a very Jewish Mother, the most visible ethnicity in the play. She urges Eugene to "write quietly" having little else to admonish him for. Blanche is well played by Elaine Davis; she radiates that chronic obeisance that a dependent relative can have because of the burden of gratitude that must be carried. Nora is a strident young rebel, played by Jessica Ann Stevenson, who is determined to get into show business (and we know), is soon to face the casting couch. Laurie, the young brat with the million-dollar murmur, is played excellently by 13-year-old Nicole DiFranco.

The male contingent has Rollie Dick playing the weary Jack, holding two jobs and head of two households. He is loving but resigned, probably the only possibility for him in this anarchic household. Stanley, played by Henry Guevara, is the older brother. Slower than Eugene, he nonetheless values his younger brother's talents, urges him to go to college, and gives him honest counsel. It's a nice role and Guevara does it very well. Eugene is played by Christopher John Anderson, who graduated from Monterey High last year as Actor of the Year. He will be attending the Americna Academy of Dramatic Arts in Los Angeles. We'll be hearing more of him I'm sure. He has poise beyond his years and a great sense of timing.

Neil Simon usually comes across as a gag writer trapped in the body of a playwright. In this play, however, he collects most of the gags in a single character, Eugene Morris Jerome, a morose yet wise-cracking adolescent whose asides to the audience are the big laugh-getters. This allows Simon to have it both ways; a stand-up comic wandering through a conventional play.

MPC's sets, for this type of production, are usually quite superior and this show is no exception. The design of the two-story interior works well and the attention to detail gives this home a lived-in feeling suiting the long-standing family situation. D. Thomas Beck and his construction crew deserve kudos once again. Constance Gamiere's costumes are just right as usual, ushering us effortlessly into the late '30s. Felix Sola on the light board and Ines Lilly on the sound console kept the illusion intact.

Peter De Bono's direction is sure and even. It seems, however, that in an effort to avoid stereotype, he took out some of the spice of the play. What I found lacking is a certain "zaftig" quality that would put more ethnic juiciness into the interactions. Take out a few references to Poland and "going to temple" and this could be a family of Presbyterians. The reverse situation in my mind would be the Yiddish Theater putting on something like The Philadelphia Story.

Tell Aunt Fanny and Uncle Fudd that if the subject of the glandular aspect of male adolescence bothers them, that they best stay home. Puberty is not pretty. For the rest of you, enjoy a very funny and warm evening of theater.

Brighton Beach Memoirs plays Thursday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. The run closes on June 4th.

ON STAGE

I Do! I Do

The GroveMont Theater will open its new Cabaret Summer Season in its newly expanded cafe theater with a gala party with wine, hors d'ouevres and opening performance of the Tom Jones/Harvey Schmidt musical I Do! I Do at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 27 at the theater, 320 Hoffman in New Monterey.

Discount previews are planned for 8 p.m. Thursday, May 26 and Friday, May 27. The production will run at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, and Sundays at 7 p.m. through July 2.

I Do! I Do is directed by Harrison Shields, with musical direction by Barbara Souza, and features Kevin Hanstick and Eleanor Wylde. The production is based on the successful play The Four Poster, which follows an ordinary marriage from its beginning in 1890 through 1925.

The Cabaret Summer Season will feature theater favorites in a cafe theater setting, complete with table seating and an expanded drinks, desserts and hors d'ouevres menu, including assorted beers and wines.

A four-show season ticket, which includes the Theaterfest Tent production of Rodgers and Hammerstein's musical South Pacific, is available at reduced prices from single-ticket prices and range from $22 to $29. Opening Night Gala season tickets are $60; single ticket prices are $8.50 general, $7 for students, seniors and military on Thursdays and Sundays; $9.50 general and $8 for students, seniors and military on Fridays and Saturdays.

Tickets are available through Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561 or through the GroveMont Theater at 649-6852.

Actors in the Adobes

A cultural and historical program of GroveMont Theater Outreach will open for two performances at 10:45 a.m. and 11:45 a.m. Saturday, May 27 at Cooper Molera Adobe and Larkin House, every Saturday through Sept. 9.

Short dramatic performances which recreate a specific time in Monterey's history (1832-1852), will be staged by local actors, including James Webber, Jeff Hudelson, Michael Jacobs, Sue Fishkoff, Morgan Stock, Jeff Heyer, Norman Stottmeister and Mindy Stock.

Historical characters portrayed in Monterey's historic adobes include Bayard Taylor, J. Ross Brown, Commodore Jones, Mrs. Ord, Walter Colton, Robert Semple, a whaler and a shopkeeper.

Funded by Thomas Doud Sr. and Anita M. Doud Fund of the Community Foundation of Monterey County, The Colton Hall Museum and Cultural Arts Commission of the City of Monterey and Monterey History and Art Association.

For more information call 649-0340.

The Nerd

Larry Shue's comedy The Nerd opens The Western Stage's 15th Summer Season at 8 p.m. Friday, May 26 at the Studio Theater at the Performing Arts Center at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

Directed by Chris Graham, The Nerd will play in repertory through Sept. 3.

A young actor from Hollywod, Richard Kuhlman, plays the Nerd, a Vietnam vet who, in battle, saved the life of a fellow soldier, Willum, played by David DiFrancesco. The Nerd, invited to visit his buddy's apartment in Terre Haute, Ind., soon proves himself to be a genius of gaucherie and an unwelcome guest. His host tries to rid his unwanted guest by subjecting the Nerd to culture shock, Terre Haute-style.

Others in the cast include company members Heather McAllister, Suzy Dodd, Frank Davis and Lorraine Fusare.

For reservations call The Western Stage ticket office at 758-1221 or 375-2111 between 1 and 6 p.m. weekdays or up to curtain time on performance days, or call Center Stage Ticketing in Monterey at 649-5561.

Grease

Carmel Valley's Village Players will open the musical comedy Grease at 8:30 p.m. Friday, May 26 the Hidden Valley Theater in Carmel Valley Village.

The production also plays Saturday and Sunday, May 27-28 and June 10-11, and Thursday and Friday, June 1-2.

The production is directed by Linda Prejean-Springer and features a cast of Carmel Valley and other local actors.

Tickets are $8 for adults, $6 for children and seniors and can be purchased at the door or through Center Stage Ticketing in Monterey, 649-5561. For reservations or information call 373-4357.

Stakeout on Godot

A new play by Yugoslavian Drago Jancar continues through May 28 at the Indoor Forest Theater.

Jancar is a novelist and playwright who is well-known in his native country, where he spent some time in jail for his ideas. Godot refers to Samuel Beckett's famous 1952 play Waiting for Godot, and follows in its absurdist tradition. It is not recommended for children.

Members of the cast include Mark Heckman, Brian Huntington, and Diane Rowe and is directed by Philip Clarkson.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday May 25-27, and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, May 28.

The Indoor Forest Theater is located at Mountain View and Santa Rita streets in Carmel. For information or reservations call 624-1531 or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

Brighton Beach Memoirs

The first comedy in a semi-autobiographical trilogy by Neil Simon, Brighton Beach Memoirs will be staged in the Monterey Peninsula College Theater.

Brighton Beach Memoirs explores the life of a certain Brooklyn teenager in 1937. Troubles seem so commonplace in the household that the boy's father laments, "If you don't have a problem, you wouldn't live in this house."

Peter DeBono directs the production. The cast includes Christopher John Anderson, Elaine Davis, Teresa Del Piero, Nicole DiFranco, Jessica Ann Stevenson, Henry Guevara and Rollie Dick.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays through June 4.

Tickets are $12 general admission; $9 for students, senior citizens and military; $6 for children under 13.

For reservations, call the MPC Theatre box office, 646-4213, between 4 and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday; or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

The Fatal Wedding

San Francisco circa 1850 is the setting for a tale of lust and greed, in which evil Lola tries to tear a family apart. This classic melodrama, The Fatal Wedding, plays at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through May.

The theater, the oldest in the state, is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and teens and $4 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1 to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

Outdoor education reunion

The 36-year-old Monterey Outdoor Education Program is asking the 50,000 county residents who have attended the science camp throughout the years to remember and share the good times from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 27, at the Buckeye Area of Toro Regional Park.

The reunion will feature nature hikes led by naturalists, parachute and earth ball games, campfires, songs, stories and skits.

Families are asked to provide their own picnic lunches. Admission to the reunion is free.

For more information call Gwenn Frindt or Laura Lee Lienk at 755-0375 or 373-2955.

Author of 'Red Army' to sign books

RALPH PETERS, author of Red Army will be signing his best-selling novel at Bookworks, Sunday May 28 from 2 to 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Peters is a United States Army intelligence captain and lives here on the peninsula.

The novel is a stark, gripping tale of a Soviet invasion of Western Europe. Red Army is about the men behind the Soviet guns. The book is published by Pocket Books Hardcovers.

Bookworks is located at 667 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove (across from the PG Post Office). If you have any questions, call Kathy at 372-2242.

Anthony Casay returns to Carmel in new show at Dyansen Gallery

A ONE-MAN show for artist Anthony Casay's paintings and graphics opens with a champagne reception 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday, May 27 at Dyansen Gallery, San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth.

Casay's paintings have been collected by such notables as Burt Reynolds, Yves St. Laurent, Tony Bennett, and Bobby Riggs. Born in Madrid, Spain, Casay got his start in the entertainment field as a child actor, then later as a drummer in a rock band. He also tried his hand at fashion designing and worked as a diplomat for the Consulate General of Mexico in Los Angeles.

But Casay eventually turned to his first love, painting and now has been at it for more than 20 years. With no formal training he turned to the Old Masters for inspiration, perfecting his technique by painting miniatures.

Primarily a seascape artist, although he also paints landscapes and futuristic "space-scapes," Casay's most recognizable themes center around the magnificent sunsets of Hawaii, often including glimpses of the undersea life off the coasts of Hawaii, such as that of the humpback whale.

"I learned a deep appreciation and respect for the sea early in my life," he once said. "And as I grew older I knew that it would become part of my self-expression."

The exhibit continues through June 15. For more information contact the gallery at 625-6903.

Dani-Guidou show opens at Simic

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA sculptor Dani and late French painter Jean-Claude Guidou's works will be on display starting Saturday, May 27 at Simic Galleries in Carmel.

The joint exhibit opens with a reception from 5 to 9 p.m. at the galleries, located at Sixth and San Carlos.

Using the complex process of lost wax casting, Dani sculpts both female and male forms. She will be debuting a new "sculpture duet" entitled "La Conquista" at the exhibit.

Dani has been inducted into the Orange Coast College Hall of Fame and her works have been published in American Artists of Renown and Southwest Art.

Born in France, Guidou specializes in portraiture and figure paintings. His formal training began at the Louvre in 1956 and continued at the Royal Museum of Belgium in Brussels. In 1960 he enrolled at the Grand Academy Chaurmiere as a student of Yves Brayer. He is recognized in France as a professional artist by the Minister of State for Cultural Affairs.

This is the last time an exhibition featuring such a large number of his paintings will be held, according to a gallery spokesman.

Paintings by Christopher James highlight Weston Gallery show

RECENT PAINTINGS by Christopher James, including "After LA No. 12" (above), will be on display at the Weston Gallery, Sixth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln, May 26 through July 16. For more information call 624-4453.

THE WESTON GALLERY will feature the recent paintings of Christopher James in a one-man show which opens on May 26 and continues till July 16.

The show will be the third exhibition of James' painting to be held at the Carmel gallery, who has represented him for 10 years. Featured will be entirely new works created in 1988 and 1989.

"The paintings are very psychologically charged, very emotional," said gallery owner Maggi Weston, who referred to James' new works as the "most powerful" to date.

Using a mixture of watercolor, gum arabic, and acrylic, James applies the paint to heavy hand-made papers in layers creating thick, heavily worked surfaces which still retain the delicate drawing characteristics James has become so famous for.

James' career continues to flourish. He has had 28 one-man shows since 1969 and his work has been included in many survey shows including exhibitions at Metropolitan Museum of Art and The Museum of Modern Art in New York, the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, the Walker Art Center and Kunsthaus-Zurich.

His work is included in more than 25 permanent collections, including the Metropolitan, MOMA, Philadelphia Museum of Art, Australian National Gallery, Chicago Art Institute, Houston Museum of Fine Art, the Chase-Manhattan Collection, the Southland Corp., Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Bibliotheque Nationale, and The J. Paul Getty Museum.

The 42-year-old James is an associate professor of studio arts at Harvard University and is head of the photography department there. Throughout his career he has worked both as a photographer and a painter and has received widespread critical acclaim in both media. His work has been extensively published and he has received many awards and grants including an NEA grant, Massachusetts Arts Foundation Fellowship and a Smithsonian Grant.

The Weston Gallery, located on Sixth Avenue in Carmel, is open Tuesday through Friday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. For further information please contact gallery director Gail Gibson at 624-4453.

"WINDSWEPT"

A SPECTACULAR PEBBLE BEACH ESTATE

Feel remote, private, and close to nature..... in the heart of Pebble Beach and within walking distance to quaint Carme-by-the-Sea. Enjoy your own 5½ acres of park-like setting with majestic oaks and redwoods, colorful rhododendrums, and azaelas, and the quiet sounds of Pescadero Creek. Be lulled by the pounding of the surf and the serene views of Pebble Beach golf course. Walk on your own winding paths or sit by the rock pond whose waterfall falls naturally with the land.

Surrounded by Carmel stone walls with teak gates, you'll appreciate the sophisticated architectural style of the main residence and the blending of clear heart redwood, oak, and travertine marble.

You will feel the luxury of the grace and spaciousness of each of the rooms and their natural entertainment flow. Modern, but with an old-world charm, this is truly a unique estate.

There is a separate 3 bedroom caretaker's cottage, as well as another separate out-building that would be ideal for your private office.

Offered at 4,000,000. Call for an exclusive showing.

A CLASSIC IN CARMEL

A HANDSOME Mediterranean-style home on a double lot in a prime south of Ocean Avenue location, a perfect setting for family living and entertaining...indoors and out. A very nice living room looks out to a big, private rear garden, and there's also a dining room, family room, and three bedrooms. Offered at $695,000.

DESIGNED FOR YOU

JUST LISTED in an excellent Jacks Peak location...a luxurious home, now nearing completion, well sited on a five-acre lot for privacy. This home features four bedrooms, along with living room, dining room, family room, and kitchen...plus three bonus rooms in the form of study, workroom, and cozy breakfast nook. You'll love the convenient floor plan, too. $825,000.

WOODED SETTING

JUST LISTED in Carmel...a lovingly remodeled three-bedroom home on a pretty wooded street, offering an ocean view from the second floor. The inviting living room features a raised hearth fireplace, open beamed ceiling, and loft. A door from the dining area leads to a sunny deck with hot tub and window boxes. Two bedrooms downstairs, master suite with fireplace and big bath upstairs. $549,000, fully furnished!

FABULOUS VIEW!

A VIEW of Monterey Bay that can't be equalled...and it's all yours 24 hours a day from this supremely comfortable four-bedroom home in Monterey's Skyline Forest. The view is so fantastic, you might tend to overlook this house itself, but that would be a mistake. There's a view living room with raised hearth fireplace, solarium dining room with view, and three bedrooms on the main floor. Downstairs, a big family room with fireplace, and another big bedroom. $595,000.

BE YOUR OWN BOSS

FOR SALE in a busy commercial area of Pacific Grove...a tastefully decorated men's hair styling salon, in the same location for 35 years. Three stations in front, ample parking to the rear. Seller will help new owner get established. $35,000.

CARMEL

WALK TO BEACH! "La Chansonette" is a bright, happy home much loved and well-maintained. In a sunny, desirable area just a short walk to the beach at Carmel Point, it would make an ideal retirement haven or second home. In outstanding condition, this remarkable 2 bedroom, 2 bath home is in its original state, with only a touch of updating. Lovely oak floors are found throughout, there is a brick fireplace in the living room, a generous-sized kitchen and there is a den/dining room. The private brick patio has built-in BBQ. $395,000. 625-0300.

SOUTH OF OCEAN AVENUE! In desirable location within walking distance to the beach and town, a neat as-a-pin Carmel charmer. Recently remodeled, this delightful home has a fireplace warming the living room with dining area, an updated, comfortable kitchen, 3 bedrooms & 2 baths. Light, bright and cheerful, the home is enhanced by open-beam ceilings in the living room and master bedroom and gleaming hardwood floors. Lovely landscaping, brick walkway and partially fenced rear yard. $469,500. 625-0300.

FAMILY HOME! On an oversized lot, an attractive, immaculately maintained home ideal for a couple or a family. In move-in condition, this one-level home has a wonderful floor plan which includes a large, skylit living room with raised hearth brick fireplace, and a family room with dining area which also shares the warmth of the fireplace. With a stucco exterior, this 3 bedroom, 2½ bath home is in a quiet location with lovely gardens and a large patio in the rear is shaded by a mature oak. Two-car garage. $395,000. 625-0300.

NEW ON THE MARKET! The perfect Carmel home, a brand-new spacious residence due for completion in August! Designed by Alan Turpen, built by Daniel Silverie, it is sophisticated, yet practical. Outstanding features include a two-story living room, library, 3 bedrooms, 3 fireplaces, formal dining room, gourmet kitchen, 3 decks and a patio. $649,000. 625-0300.

HATTON FIELDS CHARM! A handsome, spacious redwood home with a separate-entry guest quarters of living room, kitchen, bedroom & bath.
